“Vacation Hold” Burglars Plead Not Guilty

STAFF REPORTS

SGV - Eight people were arrested for their alleged involvement in a residential burglary ring that targeted Los Angeles Times subscribers, whose names were on stolen “Vacation Hold” lists.

The ring is accused of stealing an estimated $1 million in electronics and other items in the burglaries that took place in Diamond Bar, Walnut, Hacienda Heights, Chino Hills, West Covina, Arcadia, Pasadena, Santa Monica, Redlands and Ontario. The 14 burglaries occurred between December 2011 and November 2012. All suspects pleaded not guilty to charges.

All eight defendants, as follows, are charged with multiple counts of burglary, along with two counts each of conspiracy to commit a crime: Randal Joseph Whitmore, 44; Duane Vantuinen, 52; Joshua Ray Box, 44; Lorraine Marlene Vasquez, 41; Cory Mulligan, 22; Brian Thomas Duran, 42; Margaret Mary Susan High, 29; and Edwin Lynn Valentine, 53.

The investigation began when Whitmore was stopped for a traffic violation on June 24, 2012. Police discovered stolen property and Los Angeles Times Vacation Hold lists inside the vehicle. The lists gave the suspected burglars the names and addresses, as well

Two Arrested For Stealing Soldiers’ Identities

STAFF REPORTS

Pomona - Two brothers were recently arrested on suspicion of stealing the identities of soldiers fighting in Afghanistan.

Mauro Cortez, 25, and Rigo-berto Cortez, 29, both of Pomona, were arrested on Wednesday, November 27, after the Los Angeles County Identity Theft Task Force served a search warrant at the Cortez home and found evidence linking the two to the crime. Both suspects were released after each one posted $20,000 in bail.

Detectives believe the two men used the information to establish credit and purchase automobiles. The Cortez brothers received the information from another U.S. Army reservist who is on active duty. This

Local Home Invasions Instill Fear

STAFF REPORTS

SGV - On Monday, November 25, at about 9:45 p.m., three victims were held hostage in their home, while intruders used fear and intimidation to keep them at bay as they were robbed.

An elderly couple, a 95-year old man and his 87-year old wife, along with their maid, was held captive by two Hispanic males, in their early thirties, wearing dark clothing. The suspects entered the home, in the 15000 block of Facilidad Street in Hacienda Heights, through a bathroom window. One suspect held the three victims in the downstairs part of the home for 45 minutes, repeatedly shining a flashlight in their eyes and telling them to remain quiet. The other suspect ransacked the home, and took approximately $2,000 in cash and several pieces of jewelry. Both suspects left with the valuables through the front door, leaving the victims shaken, but unharmed. The victims then contacted the Sheriff’s Department.

Also on Monday, November

25, at about 11:20 p.m. two suspects wearing hooded sweat-shirts entered a home in the 500 block of Macenta Lane in Diamond Bar. A family of three was ordered to lie down, while money was taken from a purse and wallet. The suspects then left, 405 Freeway, between Costa Mesa and Seal Beach. This section of the freeway is one of the busiest in the country. A new lane will be added in both the north and south directions, with hopes of easing some of the traffic.

Originally, three proposals were up for discussion to fund the building of these lanes. The most controversial was the idea of building toll lanes. Many were opposed as it would cost citizens up to $10 a day to travel the same roads they have already been traveling. Assemblyman Mansoor even threatened to introduce legislation to block the toll lanes if the plan went through.

With over 350,000 vehicles using this stretch of the freeway, the need for additional lanes is crucial to easing congestion. After a long and heated debate, OCTA board members voted 11 - 4 to add a single lane in both directions from Euclid Street to the 605 Freeway, and to drop the proposal for toll roads.

However, OCTA Director, Todd Spitzer, warned that the toll road idea may be revisited at a later time.

The $1.3 billion additional lane project will be paid for by Measure M, which will add a half-cent tax approved by voters for transportation.

Construction is expected to begin in 2015, with the environmental impact report expected to be completed this summer.

What AB109 really means

number of prisoners who have been released seems at first to be overwhelming. In 2013, 7,000 prisoners were released early into Riverside County, and 9,000 are expected to be released in 2014. With their release, many residents are concerned and confused about what AB109 means and especially about how these prisoners will be supervised and rehabilitated back into the population. Cost and time are also major concerns to both the county and residents, as an already struggling county tries to fund the appropriate programs and hire the staff necessary to carry them through. At the core of this issue, however, is the understanding of what AB109 really is and how it works in our county.

The biggest misconception about AB109 is that there are large amounts of prisoners being released without serving their sentences. In fact, it is only low-risk, non-violent, non-sexual and non-serious offenders who are released "early" from county jails due to overcrowding. Prisoners who are incarcerated within the state prisons serve every minute of their sentence. Good behavior credit is now day by day, meaning that a three year sentence served without any incidents can be shortened in half due to good behavior. Before AB109 (also referred to as "Re-Alignment"), state prisoners were released to the state parole board to be monitored. They were the responsibility of the state until their parole was completed. Now, prisoners are released to the County Probation Department and are monitored by the county. The financial responsibility is also now on the county for probation and incarceration. The challenge with this process has been the short amount of time to prepare and lack of funds.

When AB109 was passed in 2011, there was very little time for counties to prepare for the large amount of money and staff that would be needed. According to John Field from Supervisor Tavaglione's Riverside County Second District office, "Although there is money expected to come from the state for additional monitoring and additional probation officers, we still face a pretty serious issue because the county just can't afford to build the beds and house the criminals to the extent of their sentences". While money was somewhat sufficient in the beginning, the money has just not been enough to cover what is needed.

The Riverside County Probation Department wants to make the public aware that this is something that they have been diligently working on. Before any prisoner is even considered for early release there is a process that has to be followed. First, an assessment tool is used to measure the risks and the needs of the prisoner to prevent them from re-offending. This tool gives out a score and ranks them as being at a high, medium or low chance of re-offending. The newly released prisoners are then referred to as clients and are then put on the case load of a staff member that is able to monitor them. This is to ensure that the staff monitoring the high-need clients has adequate time and resources to do so. The clients are then monitored at a frequency that is cohesive with their risk. This monitoring is done via ankle bracelets, compliance checks, etc., and is based on the needs of each individual. The probation department is supervising each and every client and holding those not in compliance accountable. They do this in different ways such as increasing the frequency of office visits, increasing sanctions, increasing the frequency of drug and alcohol tests, etc. If the clients still are unable to be responsible, the Probation Department will not hesitate to re-incarcerate them.

Chief Mark Hake of the Riverside Probation Department stated, "The biggest challenge that we have faced has been the short amount of time that they have had to ramp up and prepare for realignment. Hiring more staff has been a challenge as each person takes five to six months to complete the hiring process". Yet, even with all the challenges, the department has found ways to improve their processes. This is especially true with the homeless population. While many newly released prisoners are really homeless, many report that they are homeless in an effort to avoid officers knowing their actual residence. The probation department monitors these individuals by assigning them to an office in the general area of where they are homeless and often requires them to check-in daily via a special kiosk. These Daily Reporting Centers (DRC) take a picture of clients and requires them to key in a specific pin number and answer a series of questions. This helps the officers to keep track of their clients as well as to observe who really is or isn't homeless. Housing resources such as transitional housing and half-way houses are being set up to try and help solve these problems by giving the homeless population a place to get on their feet.

The real question that seems to be haunting local communities is, are these recently released clients really being monitored? Chief Hake assures the community that the Probation Department is aware of the unease. One of the ways that they are doing this is by creating accountability and compliance teams in the west end, east end and mid-county areas of Riverside County to track down the portion of AB109 high profile offenders and to locate those individuals that they have very little information on. Hake says that "...The success of these teams is a direct result of the teamwork and collaboration of the Riverside County Sheriff's Department, the District Attorney and the local Police Departments, and as a result they have been able to clear 85-90% of the warrants; criminals that were wanted for violations or new crimes have been caught and dealt with".

While AB109 and the realignment of funding from the state to the counties is still an ongoing problem, Chief Hake hopes that with the continued support of the community and local law enforcement groups, as well as an increase in funding, the effects of AB109 will be handled as effectively as possible. More information about what happens at the DRCs can be found in next month's issue.
