Eastvale—The Leal Property, a 160-acre parcel of some of the last open land in Eastvale, has been a popular subject around the community. The land is owned by dairyman Brad Leal, who has tried to work with the City of Eastvale in developing a plan that brings his ideas into juxtaposition with what is best for the City. Leal has long been a proponent of ensuring what is most beneficial to East-property located just east of the 15 Freeway on Bellegrave and Wineville streets, was officially sold in 2005 for industrial development, but remained somewhat intact until April 19.

An Interview With Eastvale Council Adam Rush

By JENNIFER MADRIGAL

Eastvale—Mayor Pro-tem, Adam Rush, has had the prestige of serving as the very first mayor of Eastvale when it was incorporated in October 2010. He was instrumental in the incorporation process as Fundraising and Education Subcommittee Chair for the Eastvale Incorporation Committee beginning in 2007. With a background in community planning and environmental compliance, he is an integral member of the City Council. Adam and his family live in Eastvale.

Q: What do you feel is the biggest challenge facing the City for 2014?

A: The most important challenge that faces the City of Eastvale for 2014 is the same concern we've had for the last three years, which is a continual threat to our funding. These threats come from both Washington and Sacramento and it is critical that we advocate and lobby Sacramento to halt their financial imposition on all California cities.

Q: What is your number one goal for the City this year?

A: Given our biggest challenge being threats to local funds, Eastvale will continue to grow as a "self-sustaining" city. This includes a diverse housing base, local jobs that can pay a mortgage for an Eastvale home, and a broad range of services and commercial opportunities.

Q: What "feels great" about Eastvale to you?

A: I love the community spirit that exists in our wonderful city. Eastvale is quickly growing into "the biggest little city" in the Inland Empire. We come together as one family - whether it is at a community or sports event - but still are becoming a local economic powerhouse.

Q: How long have you been here in Eastvale? What's your history with the City?

A: My wife and I moved to Eastvale in August of 2005 and first lived at the Homecoming Apartments until we purchased our home on Corona Valley in 2009, shortly after our daughter was born. I was appointed by the EIC board as the Chair of Education and Fundraising Subcommittee in 2007 and managed nearly every community fundraising and education event up until the Cityhood vote. From friends and family, I was encouraged to run for Eastvale City Council from my background as a Community Planner for Riverside County for over ten years. A majority of my work was right here in the City of Eastvale, where I managed a majority of the residential and commercial developments in the City. In June of 2010, I was elected, with the highest number of votes, and was honored to serve as the City's first Mayor. I am now asking residents to allow me a second term in office to continue the important work we have started to make Eastvale the safest and most vibrant city in Riverside County.

Election season kicks off in Eastvale

School Board Member Bill Newberry, but Newberry also invited a few city council candidates to participate. The evening proved to be a great way for candidates to introduce themselves to the community and also to begin the fundraising process.

During the fundraiser event, City Council hopeful, Joe Tessari, spoke about his wish to continue his service to the community by becoming part of the council. Tessari has served on the Eastvale Planning Commission for the last three years. Current Council member, Bill Link, also addressed the community and promised to run an open campaign, as he is a very open person and always tries to find the answers needed.

According to the City of Eastvale website, "City Council members are elected at-large for a four year term. Council Members serve "staggered" terms, meaning that either two or three seats are open for election every two years. Council Members receive a $400 per month stipend as compensation for their service". The current City Council consists of Mayor Ike Bootsma, Mayor Pro-Tem Adam Rush, Jeff DeGrandpre, Bill Link and Ric Welch. Adam Rush, Link (who replaced Kelli Howell's vacated seat in 2013) and Welch's spots are the three seats that will be up for election in November.

As the election season draws closer, more candidates are expected to come forward and announce their candidacy. Some have even begun to go door to door and introduce themselves to the community. Some previous candidates from the City Council Elections in 2012 and 2013 have already began "pounding the pavement" in hopes of getting their names out there and letting the community know their intentions. And there are others, who are quietly contemplating running and planning their next move. In an affluent city like Eastvale - with its high public safety, education and income rankings, as well as an extremely active and in-touch community - a City Council seat holds a lot of prestige.

The process to become a candidate starts early and prior to soliciting or receiving any contributions related to candidacy, aspirants must file a Statement of Intention with the City Clerk's Office. There are also additional filing requirements that are dependent on the amount of contributions anticipated. The official filing period begins on July 14 and ends August 8 of this year. To become a candidate, according to the City of Eastvale's City Clerk's office, you must first be issued a Nomination Paper which specifies the office you are seeking. You must also obtain the signatures of at least 20 and not more than 30 registered voters within the City of Eastvale.

To qualify as a candidate for the City Council, you must reside and be registered to vote within the jurisdiction at the time nomination papers are issued. More specifically, you must be:

- At least 18 years old.
- A U.S. Citizen.
- A resident of the City of Eastvale.
- Registered to vote in the city.
- You must not be on parole or serving time for any felony conviction.

To find out more information about this process, visit the City of Eastvale's website at <http://www.eastvaleca.gov/>.

EASTVALE: CNUSD To Provide Student Liaison To City Council

BY TIANA GOEGEBUER Council meeting, CNUSD (Corona Norco Unified School District) Board Member, William (Bill) Newberry, was present to discuss the idea of instating a volunteer student liaison to the Eastvale City Council. The concept behind involving a student liaison in the Council meetings would be to engage local youth in the governmental process, as well as assisting elected officials who are seeking solutions to community problems. EASTVALE: Traffic Saturations Raise Questions From Residents

BY JENNIFER MADRIGAL Eastvale— On March 25, residents contacted our Eastvale Community News Facebook about a large presence of police on Limonite Avenue. Authorities were contacted and we reported that the Riverside Sheriff's Department was just conducting routine patrols and no major issues were at hand. Later that day, the City of Eastvale issued a press release explaining how the Eastvale Traffic Police Department's Traffic Division conducted a Safety Enforcement Operation as part of its commitment to public safety. The operation was conducted at two different locations: The intersection at Limonite and Sumner Avenues, and the intersection at Limonite and Hamner Avenues. Read more online at www.anapr.com.

NORCO: Weekend DUI Check Nets 3 Arrests

Early Friday morning, Troy Davids, 21, was on his way home from work when he was killed near the intersection of Hamner and Limonite. Deputies assigned to the area were called to the scene of a major injury collision on the west side of the intersection. According to the Riverside County Sheriff's Department, the preliminary investigation revealed that a black sedan was travelling westbound on Limonite when it collided with a bicyclist, who was southbound on Hamner Avenue in the west crosswalk. The driver of the sedan fled the scene and police are currently searching for the driver. Davids was transported to a regional hospital where he succumbed to his injuries.

Another person described him as being "a wonderful young man who was a friend to everyone". Troy worked at the local Von's supermarket where he was loved and admired by his co-workers and will be greatly missed.

According to the City of Eastvale, the investigation is ongoing and the Sheriff's Department is looking over video footage from nearby businesses in an effort to help gather more information and evidence about the hit-and-run suspect.

The very next evening, April 26, four men were taking a ride in an ORV in the empty dirt field located on the northeast side of the intersection at Sumner and Limonite avenues. While making a turn, the vehicle flipped and the driver was pinned underneath. Timothy Michael Hunt was found by Sheriff's Deputies under the Polaris ORV. He was transported to a hospital where he died from his injuries. Another passenger was hospitalized for non-life threatening injuries, and the remaining two passengers were treated at the scene.

Hunt, a native of Yorba Linda, played three seasons of independent professional baseball. According to the Sioux City Journal, he was a 2007 member of Team USA, a team that finished second at the World Cup of Softball. Some residents remember him as an "amazingly generous guy" and a very special person who was newly married. Supposedly, he had been showing his new ORV off to his friends when the tragic accident occurred. According to the Riverside County Sheriff's Department, alcohol is suspected to be a factor in this incident.

High School Happenings

By REZA MORENO

The 2013-2014 Eleanor Roosevelt High School year is coming to an end, with only a few weeks left until summer. With that, spring sports are almost finished with CIF and State just around the corner.

Track and Field did an outstanding job in their Arcadia Invitational on April 11 - 12. Junior April Sutton finished off her Heptathlon competition with a 2:22 800. Taelin Webb set a personal record and jumped 6'6" to win the High Jump competition, while Chastity Ducre jumped 17'8" taking third in the girl's long jump. As for the boys, they took 2nd place in the 4x200 relay. On Sat., April 12, Simone Buchanan ran a season best of 56:35 in the open 400m. For the 4x100 relay, girls Jaela Williams, Taisyn Crutchfield, Simone Buchanan and Jasmyne Graham took second place, which is the fourth fastest time in the school's history. On April 18, the team had a meet against Centennial at home; both the boys and girls teams came in first place and did an outstanding job in all events. On April 20 - 22 the team had their Mt. SAC invitational and one event that really stood out was the girls 4x1600 relay team, breaking the school record by over 40 seconds.

Swim is also having a great start, winning against rival Norco on April 10 and against Centennial on April 17.

As for the baseball team, they won their first two league games. On April 9 they beat Corona High 4-3, and on April 11 they played against King with a score of 4-1. Although they lost to Santiago twice on April 16 and again April 18, the score was only by one point. The softball team is also doing great at the mid season point. On April 18 they beat Norco 4-1, and won against Centennial on April 23 8-1. The girls are right on track with trying to fulfill their goal of going to CIF for the first time.

ERHS has sprouted some talented athletes and here is a listing of seniors that won scholarships: For girl's soccer, Riley Brieno is going to Marymount Cal University, Angela Mitchell to SDSU, and Elena Morrison to Cal State Bakersfield. For softball, Delainey Thompson is going to Texas A&M, and Chase Reddington is going to University of Nevada Reno. There are also two outstanding football players: Joseph Muriel is going to Missouri Valley University, and Marcus Williams is off to Utah. Taelin Webb, varsity basketball captain, is off to Cal State Northridge, and girl's varsity basketball captain, Chiderah Uzowuru, is going to Grand Canyon University. Jada Helberg from water polo is signed to Cal State Bakersfield, and gymnast LaNiesha-Jorpe Irvin is off to UCLA. Good job, Mustangs!

City council recap

cation was led by Pastor Dennis Morales from Calvary Chapel. Two presentations were given by Waste Management. First, the Recycle All Star Awards were given to two local families and one business for their positive recycling habits during 2013. Second, a Recycle Bank Program update was provided.

During the Public Comment/Citizen Participation section of the meeting, Curtis Seymour from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints offered to help provide volunteers from the church to assist in various community service activities in the City. Dickie Simmons expressed his desire to continue open-forum events at the Town Hall meetings for entities who provide service to the community, and for citizens who wish to converse with City leaders in a casual manner. He went on to request that the City take over the Town Hall meetings and publicize them on the City notification website, so as to better inform the community about upcoming meetings. Finally, Kelly Howell requested that the City be conservative in their staffing.

On the Consent Calendar, Item 5.1 was approved 5-0; and Item 5.2 was approved 4-0-1, with Adam Rush abstaining due to his absence at the March 26 meeting.

In the Public Hearings section, Item 6.1 was discussed and involved Project No. 12-0750. There were three main aspects of the project: a change of zone, a major development review, and associated improvements. The Council moved to approve the project 4-1, with Welch voting no.

There were no Old Business items, so the meeting moved to New Business, as follows: Item 8.1 - The Council members moved to continue the Appointment of a Planning Commissioner to the Economic Development Committee to the next meeting under the condition that the three nominees would be present. It was approved 4-1 with DeGrandpre voting no; Item 8.2 - The Council members reviewed a Code Enforcement PowerPoint; Item 8.3 - The Policy for Considering General Plan Amendments was approved 5-0; and Item 8.4 - The Council approved the Cost Allocation Plan and OMB-A-87 Plan, 5-0.

The meeting adjourned at 8:38 p.m. with closing statements from the Council.

The April 23 City Council meeting began promptly at 6:30 p.m., with all members of City Council present. The invocation was led by Pastor Ed Moreno from New Day Christian Church. New Student Liaison, Julia Vasquez, was introduced to the Council. Julia will serve as Liaison through August. She is a senior at Roosevelt High School, as well as the current ASB president. The Eastvale Fire Department introduced their new Fire Inspector, Ken King, and there was a small presentation by Wildan Financial regarding the new Market Tax Credits.

The Council presented Eastvale Police Chief, Captain Danny Feltenberger, with a proclamation to thank him for his service to the City. Feltenberger will be heading to the Riverside County Gang Task Force and will be replaced with former Eastvale Police Chief, Captain Jason Horton, effective May 1.

All items on the Consent calendar were approved.

The highlight of the evening came from the presentation on the Leal Property. Eric Norris, Eastvale Planning Director, gave the presentation highlighting the City's move toward a more flexible plan with input from property owner, Brad Leal. Leal gave a brief presentation. Councilmember Ric Welch questioned what the City has paid for, as it seemed that the Vision Plan wasn't as far along as he thought and there seemed to still be a large amount of disagreement. Leal made it clear that he was in agreement with all aspects of the new vision plan with the exception of the high density housing. After a brief discussion and further explanation from Norris, the Council voted to approve the progression of the plan creation by staff, reflecting the new land use ideas.

In the new business section of the meeting, Mayor Ike Bootsma was appointed to the Western Riverside Council of Governments (WRCOG) Executive Committee. Planning Commissioner, Larry Oblea, was appointed to the Economic Development Committee after some discussion and debate. The idea to possibly add another member of the Planning Commission to the Economic Development Committee was discussed and will be looked into at a future meeting. Joe Tessari and Karen Patel were also nominated. The City also approved a request for proposal for Eastvale Entryway Monument signs.

Although there isn't any funding for them at this time, City Manager, Carol Jacobs, hopes to put the estimated $40,000 cost into the 2014/2015 budget consideration under general funds.

There was not a City Manager report. Julia Vasquez, the new Student Liaison gave an update. She spoke about her concern for the traffic on Scholar Way and would like to see the Walk to School Program expanded and extended. She has met with her high school principal as well as School Board member, Bill Newberry, about some ideas for an incentive program to encourage local children and high schoolers to walk to school to help ease traffic congestion.

The meeting adjourned around 8:15 p.m. with closing statements from Council.

Townhall Update

By REZA MORENO

Eastvale – The City of Eastvale quarterly Townhall meeting began on Tues., April 29 with appreciation for “Mr. Eastvale,” Dickie Simmons, who is retiring from coordinating Townhall meetings.

Supervisor Tavaglione updated residents and the Council on the current status of his jurisdiction. The County is focusing on health and human services, in addition to law enforcement services, as their main priorities.

Mayor Ike Bootsma’s update was a status report on the 71 Freeway interchange at Pine Avenue $35 million project.

Tyler Madary, from Senator Richard Roth’s office, gave an update on the current status of the Vehicle License Fees. The Senator’s office remains hopeful that the realignment funds will be restored.

New Chief of Police for Eastvale, Captain Jason Horton, introduced himself at the meeting. Lt. Michael Yates gave a crime and safety update. Stolen vehicle and aggravated assault rates have gone down and Yates hopes to maintain or lessen these numbers going forward. He also gave a brief presentation on “fishing,” which is still a trend. Fishing happens when suspects walk around in groups and simply lift vehicle door handles to see if they are open. If so, they quickly remove easy items like loose change, chargers, phones, etc. Yates reminded residents to keep doors locked and do not leave anything valuable in your car.

Don't Be Shy

By L.E.A.F.F. (Law Enforcement and Fire Fighters)

The phone number for the EASTVALE POLICE DEPARTMENT is (951) 776-1099.

Remember: DON'T BE SHY. Your job is simply to report an incident, and law enforcement will take your call seriously and check out the situation. What you see and report may be invaluable and may save lives.

Suspicious activities can refer to incidents, events, individuals or circumstances that seem unusual or out of place.

Some common examples of suspicious activities include:

- A stranger loitering in your Eastvale neighborhood or a vehicle cruising the streets repeatedly.
- Someone peering into cars or house windows.
- A high volume of traffic going to and coming from a home on a daily basis.
- Someone loitering around schools, parks or secluded areas.
- Strange odors coming from a house or building.
- Open or broken doors and windows at a closed business or unoccupied residence.

- Someone tampering with electrical, gas or sewer systems without an identifiable company vehicle or uniform.
- Sounds of breaking glass, gunshots, screaming or fighting.
- Strangers removing license plates or loading valuables into vehicles from a residence, even if the moving truck looks legitimate.

Remember: A quick and accurate description of events, vehicles, and persons can make all the difference in apprehending a potential criminal.

Any type of activity or circumstance that seems unusual should be reported.

By reporting these types of suspicious activities, Eastvale citizens can help the police make their community safer and more secure, reduce violence, minimize victimization, reduce crime and violence, and improve the overall quality of life.

Thoroughbred Farm Becomes Cal Fire Training Ground

the property was used in a variety of training and fire exercises by Cal Fire throughout Easter week, and was ultimately engulfed in flames. Eastvale residents were warned about the smoke and given updates throughout the week, but the final sight of the house being consumed caused many to reminisce. Tiffany Howard, an Eastvale resident who grew up in this area said, "I grew up wanting to live there and will miss that house".

According to the June 2005 issue of Blood Horse Magazine, the Southern California real estate boom that peaked in 2005 was one of the main reasons that the popular thoroughbred farm shut down operations. The Mira Loma Thoroughbred Farm was purchased by Pete Valenti and partners from Verne Winchell in 1977, and nicknamed "Little Calumet" by Valenti. At its peak it was home to nearly 400 horses per year with about 100 foals born there annually.

Famous for its glistening white fences and red-roofed barns, it was a sight that many remember passing on the 15 Freeway. According to real estate reports, it housed a state-of-the-art training center with 124-stall barn and a five furlong training track, which took up 25 acres in the southeast corner. Besides its beauty, the farm raised many champions, but none as famous as Larry the Legend, owned and trained by Craig Lewis. During Legend's career earnings of $652,825, he won three consecutive stakes at Santa Anita and according to track records, also earned Horse of the Meeting honors. Other famous horses like Native Storm, King Glorious, Valiant Pete and others also spent time at the Mira Loma Thoroughbred Farm.

Pete Valenti passed away unexpectedly in 1998 after undergoing heart bypass surgery and the ranch was left in the care of his wife and four children. When house values began to rise and the property's value escalated, it became difficult not to sell and according to Larry Lewis in an interview in the June 2005 issue of Blood Horse, they had to find a place to relocate the horses within a few weeks.

After the property was sold in 2005 it was occupied by various people, but the structures began to fall into disrepair. Cal Fire had been eyeing the property for the last month, and approached the developers about using it as a training facility. As soon as the current occupants left, Cal Fire was able to get in and begin the process of clearing out the carpet and plastics as required by the Air Quality Management District (AQMD). Cal Fire was granted just ten days to conduct all of their prep and exercises, so coordination and efficiency were important.

Tony Mecham, Division Chief with Riverside County Cal Fire said that training exercises began as soon as the property was ready. Firefighters from Rubidoux, Lake Elsinore, Jurupa Valley and Eastvale were all able to get live fire training. Mecham said, "That's over 150 firefighters that we were able to get through the exercises in six days. This exercise provided an excellent opportunity for all of them".

In addition, the vast amount of clear space around the structure made it the ideal place to house these training exercises. They came to a conclusion when the structure was completely engulfed in flames and allowed to basically burn down. Usually these training exercises end with demolition, but, according to Mecham, the fire got a little out of control and the decision was made to pull the firefighters out for safety and allow the structure to burn down.

According to the Jurupa Valley City Hall, no permits or plans have been made for the large parcel of land. The property is owned by IDI Development and the area is still zoned for industrial use, so there is a good chance that something will appear in the not too distant future.

Although the massive amounts of smoke and large flames could be seen from the 15 Freeway, causing many traffic delays, the experience for firefighters to be a part of such a unique training experience was unparalleled. For some Eastvale residents this property will be missed, but others feel that the training exercise really helped increase their respect for firefighters. Eastvale News Facebook friend, Julie Eskandari, expressed it best by saying, "Seeing these pictures really makes me admire our firefighters even more. Only the bravest men and women would choose to enter that [structure]".

Leal property update

vale as a neighborhood is built on his property. The idea for a “downtown feel” is one that Leal is adamant about maintaining. He has worked with the City on making that dream a reality and at the City Council meeting on Wed., April 21, it seemed that Leal and the City are one step closer to making his dream come to life.

The Leal Property is currently zoned for agricultural as well as some residential development. With the Land Use Plan, the area would be re-zoned to include mixed use purposes for retail, office, civic, etc., and pave the way for the development of a large downtown area that combines commercial and retail with open spaces and landmark features that would become a major part of Eastvale’s economy and esteem.

Since February’s Leal Property update, the Leal family and the City have been busy moving away from the strict “bubble map” version of the property layout, which included exact sections to be developed (i.e. commercial in one specific area, retail in another), and moved more toward a flexible approach. The City sat down with Mr. Leal, who was concerned with the property plan being “too specific” about where things are and showing too little retail development. The City then took his comments and came up with a new, more flexible approach.

The New Leal Property Plan allows more retail to occur, doesn’t specify locations and uses at this time, and focuses on setting a higher bar for the quality of development. The new plan calls for 326,700 to 1,300,000 square feet of commercial development, up to 920,000 square feet of office/medical development, up to 450 hotel rooms, a possible Civic Center, as well as medium and high density housing. The plan also includes many community features like open spaces and entry features.

Leal and the City have been able to agree on most of the plan with the exception of the high density housing. Leal wants to ensure that the city remains flexible to development and that there aren’t any “dead spaces.” Councilmember Bill Link seemed to have the same concern but was informed that this housing doesn’t necessarily have to be in a certain area of the property development, but instead can be a more integrated part of the overall plan.

Also, according to Eastvale’s Planning Director, Eric Norris, if the project is successful, then high density housing may not even have to be built at all.

The next step is to formalize a Vision Plan that will reflect this new land use concept. The City hopes to get this reflected into some type of brochure that will describe the land use ideas to potential developers by showing them that this project is open for business and they need only bring us their ideas. Members of the City and City Council will be attending the International Council of Shopping Centers Conference in May 2014, where many developers attend; this will allow them to get the project out to interested parties.

Once this Vision Plan has been created, the next step is the Specific plan. This will provide processes and act as more of a rule book to continue to guide the project to fruition. The City Council agreed to harmonize with the general direction that the plan is going in.

Leal, who has remained adamant about emphasizing a Downtown Eastvale area and maintaining quality for the people of Eastvale, got up to speak many times during the presentation. He explained that his original idea for a downtown “contained pockets for whatever gets built there”. He wants to make sure that the City and future developers provide a destination where all the different aspects of a downtown area blend seamlessly together. According to Leal, “This is a big project and it will develop slowly. I don’t want some guy to just come in and build a big building.” Instead Leal hopes that it will come in phases of construction and establish a real downtown Eastvale feeling.

For this project, which is roughly the same size as Victoria Gardens, attention to the finer details and the overall feel of community is apparent in Leal’s determination to ensure that it is developed in the best interest of everyone involved. The project will be a large part of Eastvale and there are many who hope it will serve as a “landmark,” bringing in jobs, business and revenue for our ever growing city.

For a dairy farmer who has been an integral part of this community, it’s about seeing his dreams and hopes come together in unison with the ideas and hopes of both the City and the Eastvale Residents.

Crime recap

terminated a separate ATM theft in the City of Hemet that occurred on April 11 in the 1800 block of East Florida Avenue was committed by the same suspects. In a collaborative effort between the Eastvale Detectives and the Hemet Police Department, the two suspects were located in Riverside. Due to the more serious crime of grand theft occurring in the Hemet Police Department’s jurisdiction, they assumed the investigation and the suspects were arrested and booked into the Southwest Detention Center for both the attempted thefts in Eastvale and the grand theft in Hemet. Ernest Brandon Causey, a 26-year old resident of Riverside was arrested for vehicle theft, conspiracy, grand theft, attempted grand theft and an outstanding misdemeanor warrant for petty theft. Causey is being held on $167,000 bail. Thomas Carlton Wilson, a 38-year old transient of Riverside was arrested for vehicle theft, conspiracy, grand theft, attempted grand theft and violation of parole. Wilson is currently being held without bail.

On Sat., April 5, at 12:30 a.m., officers assigned to the City of Eastvale responded to the area of Burrage and Rolling Meadows streets regarding the report of gunshots. Upon arrival officers located evidence that indicated someone was possibly shot and injured at that location. Within a few minutes, they received information that an adult female suffering from several gunshot wounds was dropped off in front of a local hospital. Officers discovered the female was shot by her estranged boyfriend, Alfredo Lopez, Jr., a 33-year old resident of Eastvale. After the shooting, Lopez drove the victim to a local hospital, where he dropped her off outside the front door and fled the area in his vehicle. Investigators received information that Lopez was in Los Angeles County and law enforcement agencies throughout Southern California were notified of this incident. At approximately 7:05 a.m., a Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Deputy spotted Lopez driving in the City of Hawaiian Gardens. When the deputy attempted to conduct a traffic stop on Lopez’ vehicle, Lopez failed to yield and a pursuit was initiated. Lopez’ vehicle became disabled and he stopped in a parking lot near the intersection of Carson St. and Norwalk Blvd. Lopez barricaded himself inside his vehicle and refused to exit for several hours. At approximately 2:45 p.m., Lopez exited his vehicle and was placed under arrest. Lopez was turned over to the Riverside County Sheriff’s Department and transported back to Riverside County for further investigation. He was later booked into Robert Presley Detention Center for kidnapping and attempted murder.

On Thurs., April 24, at 3:07 a.m., officers from the Eastvale Police Department were investigating a suspicious person call in the 6500 block of Emerald Downs St. At the residence, officers found the rear door was forced open. Inside the residence, officers discovered an indoor marijuana grow operation. Officers from the City of Eastvale Special Enforcement Team responded and obtained a search warrant for the residence. They seized 429 marijuana plants, ten pounds of processed marijuana and packaging material. Additionally, electricity was being bypassed around the meter, causing a serious fire hazard and resulting in approximately $6,250 per month in stolen electricity.

On Fri., April 25, at 12:12 A.M., deputies assigned to the City of Eastvale responded to a major injury traffic collision on the west side of the intersection involving a bicycle and a black sedan. The preliminary investigation revealed the black sedan was westbound on Limonite Avenue and collided into a bicyclist, who was southbound on Hamner Avenue in the west crosswalk. The Eastvale Fire Department and American Medical Response (AMR) responded to the scene and treated the victim. The victim was transported to a regional hospital where he succumbed to his injuries. The victim’s name is being withheld pending notification of the next of kin. This case is still under investigation.

I Will Say It Again: Rejoice!

By PASTOR MARK LEE

When most people think of the month of May, two special occasions come to mind: Mother's Day and Memorial Day. But, did you know that more than 70 obscure holidays are observed this month? From Mother Goose Day on May 1 to National Macaroon Day on May 31, there is a reason to celebrate every single day this month. And yet, some of us will find it hard to be happy on even one day. Have you ever had a bad morning? Has that bad morning ever evolved into a bad day or bad week? So often, we fixate on the negative. We see the grumpy boss and not the paycheck. We hear the temper tantrums, but tune out the laughter. We complain about dirty dishes, but forget to be thankful for dinner. And, when you focus on the negative, it multiplies. Soon, all you see are the negative aspects about your job, your marriage, etc. Life can be overwhelming. Whether you are struggling with broken relationships, financial difficulties, or simply trying to get the kids to school on time, it is easy to get discouraged. It is a lot harder to be positive, especially in the midst of tribulation. But, in Philippians 4:4, Paul tells us to, "Rejoice in the Lord always. I will say it again: Rejoice!"

It takes discipline to be happy. Every day, we need to make a conscious effort to focus on the positive and rejoice in the little stuff. This is what the month of May – and its 70 plus holidays – reminds us. Whether it is National Star Wars Day on May 4 or Dance like a Chicken Day on May 14, we need to find a reason to celebrate! VantagePoint Church meets at Roosevelt High School on Sundays at 8:30, 10, and 11:30 a.m.

God's Building Program

By PASTOR ROB NORRIS

"Therefore everyone who hears these words of Mine and acts on them, may be compared to a wise man who built his house on a rock," (Matthew 7:24). In the 1870s, when the citizens of Swan Quarter, North Carolina, began looking for a piece of property for a new church building, their sights fell on a nice piece of elevated land where the structure would be reasonably protected from coastal flooding. But the landowner had more lucrative plans for the property and declined their offer. So the church was built on another site and dedicated on Sept. 16, 1876. Within a matter of days, however, a monster hurricane reached landfall at this precise location. One casualty of the storm was the brand new Swan Quarter United Methodist Church, which was lifted up off its pilings by the surging tide of storm water and carried north—floating, intact—and then inexplicably east, eventually coming to rest on the very tract of land its leaders had originally requested. As legend tells it, the property owner came with trembling hand to sign over the title deed to the church. Yes, God is in control. Since 1994, as I have attempted to walk with God, on more than one occasion I have had to admit that I don't have the foggiest idea about what He is up to.

He is God and I am not. I don't understand the loss of a child, a chronic or terminal illness, the death of a young mom or dad, and a thousand other things that make zero sense, humanly. What I do know from the Scriptures is that God has a unique purpose for every person and for everything that happens to us. He made us to trust Him, regardless of the circumstances. And that is reflected in the new name of that Methodist church in North Carolina that God moved to solid ground: Providence United Methodist Church. Live it: What are you or a family member facing right now that is testing your trust in God? What are your alternatives? Pray: Confess any lack of belief in God that He is in control, and express your faith that you want to trust Him because He does know what He is doing, even if you don't. *The Crossings meets Sundays, 10 a.m., at River Heights Intermediate, 7227 Scholar Way, in Eastvale. Compassion of Christ

By PASTOR ROBERT JEWETT

Although Jesus' entire ministry was focused on reconciling a lost world to himself (2 Corinthians 5:18-19), he could not help but have compassion on the lost and hurting. Large crowds would gather to see him work miracles, but many would reject him as Messiah. This could not, however, prevent him from showing compassion on them. Even to the point of death, hanging on a cross looking down upon those desiring his death, he prayed, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do," (Luke 23:34). Over and over again we see Jesus having compassion for the people. He had compassion on those who were full of internal turmoil and hopelessness (Matthew 9:36), and upon those who were sick (Matthew 14:14). He had compassion on the widow who lost her only son (Luke 7:11-15), and upon those who were hungry

(Matthew 15:32). He also has compassion on you today in your circumstances. Sometimes we try to ignore the fact that we are messed up and in need. Instead of humbling ourselves, we puff ourselves up and miss the amazing compassion that Christ has for us. Turn to Christ today and receive his love and compassion!

Good Company

By PASTOR DENNIS MORALES

"And everyone who was in distress, everyone who was in debt, and everyone who was discontented gathered to him. So he became captain over them. And there were about four hundred men with him," (1 Samuel 22:2). David takes a few men, not perfect men, not model citizens, but men who are stressed, in debt, and have issues. Notice they are distressed, bankrupt, and discontented or literally "bitter of soul." They were looking for something different in their lives, something better. So God led these 400 men to David. The pressures of life caused these men to seek refuge with David. These men came to David in distress, but they didn't stay that way. David made them into the kind of men described in 1 Chronicles 12:8: "Mighty men of valor, men trained for battle, who could handle the shield and spear, whose faces were like the faces of lions, and were as swift as gazelles on the mountains." David eventually trains these 400 men into a well-oiled fighting force of great discipline and bravery. Jesus said, "Come to Me, all you who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," (Matthew 11:28). David dealt with the physical, but Jesus heals the spiritual. When you give your life to Christ, He goes to the heart of the problem, which is the heart (Jeremiah 17:9). Jesus doesn't focus on what brings you to Him, but on what He brings to you. He brings forgiveness, peace, and true change. "...Anyone who belongs to Christ has become a new person. The old life is gone; a new life has begun," (2 Corinthians 5:17). *Calvary Chapel Eastvale meets Sundays, 10:30 a.m., at Clara Barton Elementary (7437 Corona Valley Ave, Eastvale). Faith and Science

By PASTOR TIM EATON

The debate between faith and science has raged for centuries. For some people of faith, science is a dark subject and the mention of it strikes fear in the heart. Rather than engage science, some prefer to ignore it. Yet science is a love, a fascination, a way of life for other people of faith and they struggle to harmonize their beliefs about the two. Could there be another way? Could they be compatible? Could they, in fact, be helpful to one another? This is not a new idea. Johannes Kepler (1571-1630), was the father of physical astronomy. A strong believer, he had intended to become a minister but accepted a position as a teacher of mathematics and astronomy. He discovered three mathematical laws of planetary motion (elliptical orbits of the sun). He even sought to reconcile these ideas with scripture. In this regard, he is famous for his quote: "Thinking God's thoughts after Him." Kepler's introduction of physics to the study of astronomy was initially rejected by the scientific community. It was his faith that strengthened his resolve to press on and publish his groundbreaking research in the face of opposition. I invite you to discover the very interesting connections between faith and science on May 18, as Edgewater welcomes special guest speaker, Dr. Ken Ebel, Professor of Biology at Concordia University Irvine. Come discover the harmony for yourself as Dr. Ebel discusses faith in the light of science. Edgewater Lutheran Church meets Sundays at 10 a.m., worshipping at Harada Elementary, 12884 Oakdale Street, Eastvale, CA, 92880; www.EdgewaterLutheran.org.

Here We Grow Again

By K.P. SANDER

Eastvale – With the second, and dare we say much needed, Starbucks location at Archibald and Schleisman (I mean, what if you aren't heading in the direction of the Starbucks in the Ralph's shopping center?) opening mid April, two additional businesses opened their doors with a ceremonious Ribbon Cutting.

Ponino's Pizzarena: If you are familiar with the Original Graziano's Pizza in Ontario, then you can appreciate the grand opening of their sister location in the Cloverdale Marketplace at Limonite and Hamner avenues on April 12. Says owner, Lee Turriciano, "We are fortunate to finally be in Eastvale; it's been a long time coming."

With bright, welcoming décor, and a business philosophy that caters to local sports teams, Turriciano says they are all about quality. "We make our own sauce and dough daily, use real cheese and fresh ingredients," he adds. Their menu has a wide variety of choices to satisfy any appetite.

With a game room, party rooms, and a spacious dining area, there is plenty of space for teams and families to coincide in a friendly atmosphere to celebrate a team victory, or a regular weekly pizza night.

New Day Christian Church: On a cool April 26 morning, Eastvale's first official church building opened its doors. While they were fortunate enough to have their site completed for Easter Sunday services, New Day Christian Church's appreciation for what has transpired was very apparent at the ribbon cutting ceremony.

Dignitaries Mayor Ike Bootsma, Assemblyman Eric Linder, Brad Dupray (Senior Vice President of Church Development Fund), New Day church members, and many other City of Eastvale guests were present to share in the celebration of the 8,530 square foot worship center that has finally come to fruition on the 4.36 acre property next to the fire station on A Street. The realization of this building was many years in the making, and Pastor Ed Moreno couldn't be more pleased, or more humbled. "When you look at this place, look to God, for we had very little to do with it," says Moreno.

With much of the labor and materials either donated or provided at cost, the concrete tilt-up is a welcome addition to the City of Eastvale, and inspiration to the other, now mobile, churches in the City. As Mayor Bootsma said, "As you know all churches in Eastvale meet in schools and homes. It is exciting that New Day has opened its doors as the very first church here."

JCSD Sewer Project: While the growth of Eastvale is very apparent above ground with new homes and businesses all around, a big part of the development is happening below ground. You may have noticed that many of the tion in 2010, the failure to clean dryer vents is the leading factor contributing to the ignition of clothes dryer fires in residential buildings. Dust, fiber, and lint are, by far, the leading items first ignited in clothes dryer fires. Most of the lint that is created from clothes tumbling in the dryer is caught in the filter but it also accumulates in the dryer and in the vents. Lint is a very combustible material and as it builds up it can overheat and a possible fire can ensue.

Angiel Air is a heating, ventilation and air conditioning service that is located in Eastvale at 12672 Limonite Ave, Suite 3E-199. Of their many services, Angiel Air offers dryer vent cleaning. They have over 15 years experience in heating and cooling, and all of their technicians are professionally trained to provide their customers with the highest level of service. With the heat of summer right around the corner, isn't it time to have your Air Conditioning checked and your dryer vents cleaned? Eastvale - May is a busy month as well as an important month. With Mother's Day and Memorial Day forthcoming, May focuses on appreciation – appreciation for the mothers and the veterans – and all the important people in our lives.

Show the mother in your life that she is special by spending some time with her or maybe taking her out for a meal at one of the local restaurants in Eastvale. Celebrate Memorial Day by remembering and thanking a veteran, both past and current, for all the sacrifices they have made for our country.

While celebrating all of the events that May brings, keep your shopping local. By "Shopping Eastvale," you not only show our local businesses that you support them, but you help our beautiful City by keeping our sales tax dollars right here at home.

However you celebrate this month, don't forget to include all the important people in your life.

Hike It Out

By JENNIFER MADRIGAL

There is something about a hike that has a way of freeing you, just a little. Hikes can clear your mind, making thoughts crisper and really helping one reflect on life. It could be the air, it could be the time away, or it could be the endorphins released when you exercise. It really doesn't matter, it just feels good and that "getting away from it all" feeling is sometimes all you need.

Lately, my friend and I have been doing a little hike to get away and just talk, and I have come to look forward to our time together. Jen and I met when I was just 20, recently married, and only had the responsibility of one son. We had just bought our first home in Claremont, and one day I saw Jen walking with her daughter and stopped her. Soon we found that our similarities in name, address and place in life were hilarious. We became fast friends and spent a lot of time walking, bike riding, and attending Mommy and Me playgroups with the kids. After a year or so, we moved to Eastvale, but we remained friends. We'd chat on Facebook, text and see each other from time to time at a parent support group.

As life progressed, our similarities increased. Soon, we both were blessed with autistic sons and relied and leaned on each other for help and support. We helped get each other through the messy IEPs (Individualized Educational Programs), the therapists, doctor ideas, and much more.

We also both managed to lose ourselves in the process. As a parent with a special needs child, you tend to spend so much time trying to keep your head above water, that often you forget how much you love to "swim". But life has a funny way of smashing people back together when they need it.

At a random day at the park for a visit, I saw the warning signs of autism in her then 9-month old son, and opened my mouth to the one word that would set her world on end, "autism". Years later, it would be me who needed her guidance in the rough world of autism. She gets it. She sees me through it and knows "me". Not the mother, or the wife, or the Jennifer I show the world, but the true "me". The "me" that is scared and confused and not confident and just trying to make sense of it all.

Years later, a Facebook conversation led into the fact that we were once again experiencing similar issues and we bonded all over again. These little conversations and daily encouragements have helped to keep us both on track and we find that once again, we are helping each other through yet another difficult period. So we hike, and we talk about the "me" that we each are. We talk about our feelings, our desires, our hang-ups, our wrinkles, our frustrations and we just vent. There is no judgment. We know we are both kind of screwed up, but we are survivors. We know how to depend on ourselves to get what we need to make it another day. Your world, your choices, and your needs are much different when you know you will have a child that "really, really" depends on you, and will continue to do so for far more than 18 years at home. You are a different person from living a life like that, and not everyone understands it. By having a friend who shares both your first and middle name, a lot of your life experiences, and sadly even knows the agony of losing a parent too young, is a God-send. It's not just a hike, or a goofy Facebook message...it's a connection, a lifeboat in a sea of rough water, and a friend who can remind me to swim when I feel the water above my head. We "get it".

So every time we get up on that trail, we let it all go. Spill out all the secrets, talk about all our issues and laugh and giggle and make crazy hand motions to further prove our points. We get to be our wonderful, natural, slightly mentally disturbed selves - and it's wonderful.

Eat Well, Feel Happy

By NICOLE GILLES, RD, CDE, CSR

Have you noticed a change in your mood lately? Not feeling as happy and energetic as you used to? Food may be to blame.

During the winter months, most Americans tend to eat more starch and fat in their diets, which can leave you feeling sleepy and emotionally unstable. High fat food, like fried food, whole fat dairy products, and fatty meats take lots of time and energy to digest. All this strain on the body may leave you in need of a nap. Large portions of starchy food, like grain products, pasta, potatoes, and sweets will cause a dramatic rise and fall in blood sugar levels. This effect may cause your mood to rise and fall as well, leaving you feeling mad or anxious. Let's face it. We could all use a little more energy, patience, and emotional stability to help us juggle our busy lives.

So what are we to do? Small changes in the diet may help support an improved and stable mood while providing increased energy levels. Can you believe food can affect your mental health that much? If you need more convincing, try it out for a month and see how you feel. Start by making small changes like avoiding fried food and switching to low fat foods for a week. The next week, continue your previous changes and start cutting back on starchy food. If this leaves you feeling hungry, increase your portions of vegetables and/or snack on one cup of fresh fruit between meals. The decreased fat and starch intake will decrease your body's energy demands to digest food, leaving more energy for what you want to do. The decreased starch portions and occasional fruit snack will also support level blood sugars, which will support emotional stability. Together, these small changes can make a big difference in your mental health.

Celebrate Mental Health Month this May by making small food changes to feel better by June!

Eastvale Resident Seeks A Kidney

By JENNIFER MADRIGAL

Eastvale – Local Eastvale residents, Diana and Darryle Minor, have been quietly enduring a struggle that no family should have to face. Darryle was diagnosed with Polycystic Kidney Disease (PKD), which is a condition that causes the kidneys to become enlarged with multiple cysts. In Darryle's case, the PKD progressed to the level where his kidneys were five times the normal size and were completely taken over by cysts. The condition has worsened drastically over the last two years. In December 2011, he started dialysis treatments because his kidney function was reduced to less than 15 percent. The disease further attacked his system to the point that his kidneys had to be removed on Aug. 29, 2013. He continues on dialysis.

The dialysis process is currently three visits each week, four hours each visit. The procedure leaves him weak and unable to work, and each visit usually takes the rest of the day to recover from. With two young children, a 10-year old son, Darrian, and an 8-year old daughter, Dakota, Darryle is forced to watch life from the sidelines.

But Darryle's wife, Diana, is on a quest to find a kidney for her husband. Although he has been on the waiting list for a kidney from a deceased donor for about two years, the wait is usually about eight to ten years. Darryle's best chance for survival is a kidney from a living donor.

Most people are unaware that you can live a healthy, normal life with only one kidney. And that donating a kidney has nothing to do with ethnicity as in incidents of bone marrow. The Live Donor process has more to do with blood type and overall health of the donor.

The Minors are sharing their story hoping that someone out there would consider being tested in consideration as a possible donor for a kidney transplant. A kidney from a living donor has the potential of lasting almost twice as long as a kidney from a deceased donor, and would enable Darryle to hopefully live a healthy and normal life. This act of extreme kindness would help Darryle give his family back the father and husband that he longs to be once again.

If you or someone you know would be interested in the Living Donor process to help Darryle, please contact Louisa K. Machain, the Living Donor Coordinator at Loma Linda University. She can be reached at (909) 558-3636, Extension 368002, or via email at lmachain@llu.edu. You can also contact her assistant, Lorena Aparicio, at Extension 36803. Diana Minor would also be happy to respond to any questions you might have. Please contact her at (951) 847-0178, or dyminor@csupomona.edu.
