Bus Crash Claims Two Area Residents

By GLENN FREEMAN

Orland – Two Inland area residents were among 10 killed when a tour bus filled with prospective college students and chaperones burst into flames following a head-on collision with a FedEx truck near the northern California town of Orland.

Among those killed were Arthur Arzola, 26, of Rancho Cucamonga, and Marisa Serrato, 17, of Riverside. Both were among 10 killed – five adults and five students – in the April 10 crash. The accident also injured several others.

The tragic events unfolded on Thursday evening, April 10, when a bus of high school students – many from Southern California – traveling to Humboldt State University in Arcata was reportedly side-swiped by a Federal Express truck. The bus was on the Interstate 5 freeway passing through Orland (in the northern Sacramento Valley) when the accident occurred at about 5:30 p.m.

Suspected "Luger Bandit" Caught After Chino Hold-Up

STAFF REPORTS

The "Luger Bandit," who had been sought for the robbery of multiple banks, appears to have been caught after a bank holdup in Chino on Wed., April 16. The suspect matched the FBI's description of the individual associated with multiple robberies, including those in Corona, Eastvale, Granada Hills, and Fontana. Two of the banks that had been robbed were reportedly offering a combined $15,000 for information leading to the suspect's arrest and conviction.

The most recent holdup occurred at 9:14 a.m. on Wednesday, at the Chase Bank located at 7033 Schaefer Ave in Chino. The suspect, identified as Ramsin Jonathan Malek, was taken into custody around 9:30 a.m. According to jail records, he was booked for investigation of armed robbery with bail set at $100,000.

Eastvale – In the last few years, more than 50 marijuana grow houses have been located, investigated and ultimately shut down by the work of the Riverside County Sheriff's Department in conjunction with Eastvale's Special Enforcement Team. Many of these houses were located with the assistance of the community, who have listened and followed the "How to Spot a Marijuana House" tips and diligently called in their suspicions to the Sheriff. So while it may seem to the public that Eastvale has been

Silverlakes: Another Perspective

By JENNIFER MADRIGAL

Eastvale – With so much controversy and politics surrounding the now infamous Silverlakes Equestrian and Sports Park in Norco, there seems to be a notion that the taxpayers of Norco have received nothing in return. According to Norco Councilman, Kevin Bash, that simply is not true. In fact, Bash points out that Norco has directly and indirectly received millions of dollars in cash, infrastructure, property improvements, road improvements, and more.

The Silverlakes property was first purchased in 2002 for $5.5 million dollars with the primary intent to stop more homes from being built. The City also hoped to create a "green belt buffer" between Norco and Eastvale. The money used to purchase the park was from RDA (redevelopment) Funds, and as a result the Redevelopment Agency actually owned Silverlakes. Those funds were very limited in what they could be used for and were eventually a months-long investigation that began following the lodging of complaints to the City Council in September 2013. Nearby residents of the factory say the spicy odors have caused burning eyes, nose bleeds, heartburn, and issues with asthma.

In late November 2013, after Irwindale officials sued the company, a Los Angeles County judge issued a temporary halt in the offending production process to implement mitigation measures, conditions the City of Irwindale now say Huy Fong Foods has breached.

In the Nov. 26, 2013 ruling, Judge Robert H. O'Brien indicated that although there was a "lack of credible evidence" of health problems linked to the strong odors, he said it appears to be "extremely annoying, irritating and offensive to the senses warranting consideration as a public nuisance" and that it was "reasonably inferred to be emanating from the facility."

At a public hearing held in February 2014 that was attended by supporters on both sides of the issue, Huy Fong Foods owner, David Tran, and plant workers, pleaded with the City not to force a shutdown. Nearby residents of the factory responded by saying they don't want to shut it down, but want the conditions addressed.

Officials with Huy Fong said they had installed filters on the roof, and that the company was working with AQMD to find long-term solutions. Huy Fong's attorney, John Tate, says the company hopes to fix the odor problem by June 1, in time for the

when the use of materials containing asbestos was common in construction. Among the damages to the school were several fallen ceiling tiles in the main building, which was the source of the asbestos. The kindergarten buildings remained untouched by the carcinogen.

In his letter Roland stated, "The main classroom building may not be ready for six weeks, or more," and that the length of time the building will be closed depends on how soon the district gets their cleanup plan approved by South Coast Air Quality Management Association and can pass inspections.

Beginning on Tuesday, April 1, students in Grades 2 through 6 are being relocated to classrooms at Laurel Elementary, "Until it is determined we can return to Fanning," Principal Susan Metcalf wrote in a letter on the school's website which explained the temporary class placements, bus options, and other information relating to the relocation.

The damage done at Fanning elementary was one of the most serious cases in the area. Most of the damages faced by residents and retailers were for objects such as store merchandise and glassware that fell off shelves and out of cabinets. Brian Clodt, a Brea resident, said the earthquake caused some cracks in the wall of his condo and broke his TV.

Since the 5.1 earthquake hit La Habra at 9:09 pm on Friday, there have been 210 aftershocks and counting, according to earthquaketrack.com. Among those, eight were a 3.0 or above, with the strongest being a 4.1 which occurred Saturday afternoon in Brea.

Bus crash claims two local residents

Officials are still determining what caused the fiery incident that claimed so many. Arzola, who was an admissions counselor and recruiter for Humboldt State University, was a graduate of Chino's Don Lugo High School, Class of 2006. He served as ASB President in 2005-06. Arzola did his undergraduate work at Cal State San Bernardino and attended the University of La Verne, where he recently earned an educational counseling credential as a graduate student. Arzola is said to have had a passion for helping students realize their academic dreams. He is survived by his wife, Krystle. Serrato, of Norte Vista High School in Riverside, was on the trip with her identical twin sister, Marisol, who was on a different bus. Family and friends described the twins as inseparable. The sisters had both received acceptance letters to Humboldt State, the school they were said to be leaning toward attending. The bus was one of three buses filled with students visiting Humboldt State University.

Linden, Malek was arrested after witnesses informed police that the gunman had fled in a grey BMW 328i. When police made a traffic stop after spotting a vehicle matching the description, Malek was arrested. In his vehicle was a Luger pistol. Another robbery linked with the suspect just last week was the Chase Bank in San Dimas. The Los Angeles County

San Dimas Sheriff's Station reported that a man, armed with a handgun, entered the bank at 1198 Via Verde Drive on Wed., April 9. The suspect demanded money before fleeing on foot. Authorities linked the incident with several other banks allegedly robbed by the same suspect in the span of more than a year. In a news release from the FBI, law enforcement began seeking the public's assistance in the search for the bank robber early in 2013. The suspect was said to have a modus operandi of ordering employees and customers to the ground while brandishing a luger-type weapon.

Pot growing in Eastvale

inundated with "drug houses and crime", that really is not the case. What makes a marijuana grow house, and how do they keep ending up in our community? This is one of the most commonly asked questions with one of the simplest answers: size and availability. Eastvale has a multitude of large homes, and with the economic downturn, many of these homes were left abandoned or were quickly purchased by investors. Unfortunately, a lot of these owners didn't take the time to do the proper background checks on tenants or follow up with property checks, to ensure that their homes were being used properly. According to Sergeant Davis of the Riverside County Sheriff's Department, "Often after a bust, when we try to locate the renters (if they were not there and arrested at the time) we find that the owners were given inaccurate paperwork, fake identifications and were paid in cash. As a result, the trail goes cold." The actual homeowners are then responsible to pay for all the damages done to these homes. As Davis describes, "These homes get ruined inside with mold and water damage and an absolute disregard for the property". The large Eastvale houses enable the full process of marijuana cultivation to occur because there is sufficient space. According to the Assistant Police Chief of Eastvale, Lieutenant Mike Yates, the homes in Eastvale have the room to run the entire operation. "There are even a few guys that were setting up these houses to prepare them to become grow houses by circumventing the electricity and thus providing the processors with a 'pre-made' facility," he says. Bypassing the electricity causes an extreme fire hazard, which was witnessed firsthand when a property on Craighburn Circle in Eastvale caught on fire and was later discovered to house over 1,100 marijuana plants. Besides being a fire and safety hazard, the circumventing of the electricity also robs Edison of thousands of dollars in stolen electricity and destroys the house. The electronics inside the walls of the home are ripped out by cutting into the dry wall. The criminals rip open the plastic and tap into the electric system, basically running their own electric panels and bypassing the original system. According to Davis, it's difficult for Edison to spot these low or non-using homes because the grid is so large, and so many of these homes are on solar power and using very little electricity, or are abandoned or for sale. The process of tracking down these houses, identifying and confirming them, and ultimately shutting them down, is something that the Eastvale Special Enforcement Team has gotten pretty good at doing. Sergeant Davis explained how he was fortunate enough to go on a ride-along with two set team officers who have a unique way of finding these grow houses - with their noses. They basically drive around with their windows open and are able to smell the marijuana. They then narrow down the smell to a few houses and call Edison to check the grid for bypass possibility.

Sure enough, they have been correct. Search warrants have been issued and houses have ultimately been busted. But what happens to the criminals after the bust? Are they being prosecuted, and where are they coming from? Yates has noticed that many of the suspects are from the San Gabriel Valley and cities like Monterey and Alhambra are drawn to Eastvale by the size of the homes and because, "there simply is enough space to house an entire operation". Many different people are involved in each house and they often can be seen coming and going. While a house is being investigated and activity is being monitored, every effort to catch the criminals in "the act" is made. Davis explains that if the suspects are in the house during the bust, they are arrested and the case is turned over to the DA for prosecution. However, if they are not in the home, an investigation is continued to try and locate suspects; but when owners are not aware of who is really renting it becomes difficult. When they are found and arrested, suspects are being prosecuted for felonies and doing jail time - suspects like family members Vinh Cuomg and John Hoa Tran, who were both arrested on Jan. 14 for cultivating marijuana at an Eastvale home on Iris Court. Officers seized 398 marijuana plants, five pounds of processed marijuana and packaging material. Additionally, electricity was being bypassed around the meter, causing a serious fire hazard and resulting in approximately $6,000 a month in stolen electricity. Both were charged with felony counts of marijuana cultivation, denied probation, and are awaiting sentencing. So while the Eastvale Special Enforcement Team continues to canvas neighborhoods looking for these houses and driving them out of our community, Sergeant Davis wants the community to know that they all appreciate the diligence of the Eastvale citizens in calling in tips and being aware. With a community as savvy in social media as Eastvale is, and with the commitment of its citizens to maintaining a safer community, hopefully these marijuana houses will soon become a trend of the past.

taken away by the Governor. Had the property not been purchased, the money would have been completely lost.

Already occupying the property, the once beautiful Lyn-Bar Ranch and fishing ponds fell deeper into disrepair as the land continued to be a constant source of Council and public controversy. Weeds grew higher, the property generated no revenue, and the costs for fencing and weed abatement began to add up. In April of 2011, the City of Norco purchased Silverlakes from the RDA for one dollar, and ownership came with a Federal deed restriction stating the land could only be used for a park and any commercial use included must fund the park.

his quest to see this land turned into the Silverlakes Equestrian and Sports Park that both Eastvale and Norco are eagerly anticipating. Negative press, bank troubles and political divisions between the Council and community have caused delay after delay. According to Councilman Bash, "This project should have been shelved so many times, but Brandes has continued to stick in there because he sees the big picture." In fact, following the December 2010 flood that absolutely devastated the property, Brandes had already spent $4 million on the site.

In July of 2011, Balboa Management Group, LLC and the City of Norco entered into a Funding Construction and Acquisition Agreement in which the City of Norco agreed to set aside $6,000,000 of a 2009 Enterprise Revenue Refunding Water and Sewer Bond to reimburse Balboa Management Group for the actual cost of eligible sewer and water related facilities. This loan agreement was very unusual because normal practice calls for the landowners, The City of Norco, to be responsible for installing the entire infrastructure, but in this case Brandes accepted a loan to do all the work. To clarify, Norco bond holders (Norconians) will be paid back and thus pay nothing for water, sewer and storm drain construction. This loan was discussed in multiple public meetings and clearly understood by the Norco City Council. Bash believes that many people don't know that there is a loan agreement in place. Part of the loan agreement includes Balboa Management Group paying $33,040 each month in lease payments. This rental income is the second largest tax revenue generator for the City of Norco. In addition, these initial Norco/Silverlakes start-up loan monies have attracted millions of dollars from county and federal agencies, which funded the long delayed Hamner Avenue widening project and will be used to build the new Hamner Bridge.

The money and improvements from this project to the City of Norco cannot be ignored. Over $396,000 each year in lease payments has been collected from Balboa Management Group, which goes directly to the general fund. This money is used to fund public safety, children and senior programs, and more. Additionally, millions of dollars from outside agencies, services and advantages have been provided to Norco, one of the most substantial being the dike. After the flood of 2010, Norco Staff, Brandes and the Army Corp of Engineers sought a better way to protect the property from flooding. A protective dike that runs from the northeast sector of the property around to the southern end along the river was constructed. This dike is designed to withstand a flood where water rises up and over the property. The $752,000 project was paid for by Riverside County Flood Control.

Silverlakes Equestrian and Sports Park may still seem to be only weeds and dirt at this point, but the property has generated thousands of dollars to Norco's general fund, brought road and city improvements to Norco and the property is worth so much more than it was five years ago. It has promise, and will be a major component to the economic health of the communities of Norco and Eastvale by attracting more business interests to both cities. At press time, Brandes is still committed to the project, is still making his lease payments, and hopefully will soon acquire the financing needed to finally bring this project to completion.
