New Residential Area

Chino Hills – On April 4, the Chino Hills Planning Commission met to discuss the plan that private owner Trumark Homes is requesting approval of for the area over which previously stood Chino Hills City Hall.

Due to various issues with municipal code and site plan reviews, the hearing was continued to April 18, and the report from that review meeting is still being drafted.

Heart To Serve: Offering Hope To The Hopeless

Combining Community Outreach with Business Services

BY MARISSA MITCHELL

Chino Hills – For four years now, an organization has existed somewhat under the radar providing services to both individuals and the community at large.

Heart 2 Serve, a privately owned and operated 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, currently assists adult individuals in substance abuse recovery and reintegration as productive members of society through community service and construction businesses offered to the San Bernardino and Los Angeles County areas.

This faith-based (Christian) organization was founded by Brian and Cindy Baughman, with the help of fellow faith members, in 2013. It initially began as a construction company, followed by what was termed an "RV ministry" for transitional living. In 2015, Heart 2 Serve, Inc. became a 501(c)(3) entity, focused entirely on individuals who truly wanted help.

Heart 2 Serve provides all that is necessary to rebuild individual lives that have fallen into hopelessness due to substance addiction through the business

Our Life: A Place Called Brilliance

BY MICHAEL ARMIJO

I believe in the old premonition that we all have a special purpose in this world, but I also believe that each of us holds a special talent. We all possess "special powers."

It's not fable-like, or something you're "born with," but more of a skill that we hold. A passion we've spent our lives preparing for and defining. Something we are really good at.

I believe we all have something special inside of us, something that we grew to love, were exposed to all our lives, or something we've spent countless hours doing. And now, after dedicating so many years to this passion, we've found ourselves experts at that one thing we do.

Whether it's a simple job, or a defined art, it's our dedication and desire that makes us great at what we do. And I believe that there is no job that is demeaning or unworthy, just as long as we take pride in it and embrace that we're experts at it.

Not all of us can quite claim fame to a particular ability, because there are only some of us that have found a route, or a path, that has given us the freedom in our lives. And there are others who have not. That path has set us free of having to create self worth, experiencing self-pity, and feeling selfishness. We've learned our special purpose, and we've defined it. We've perfected our craft; we've polished our crystal ball.

And then there are the others. The ones who haven't seen the light, developed the confidence, or haven't found their special purpose. They still spend countless hours watching the time clock, bearer to their insecurities, prisoner to their past. They hold a special talent that they're either too detached to realize or too insecure to pursue. I know that for a fact, because that described me years ago.

It's too bad for those who haven't yet felt their own light. It harbors inside them, it looks for opportunities to flourish. It wants to come out, like an eagle, and spread its wings, to fly and soar above the earth. But we often clip its wings and often discourage it from taking flight because we are fearful or sometimes allow obstacles to get in the way.

I've recognized my special place, my brilliance, on a dark and lonely day. I felt pain, and one day, at 13 years of age, I wrote about it. I was candid, I was open, and I was honest. It made me feel so powerful and gave me so much freedom that I realized my calling. So I continued and I practice. Today, it's my living. Tomorrow it will be

History 101

April 22, 1954: McCarthy Army Hearings Begin

BY HISTORY.COM

Senator Joseph McCarthy begins hearings investigating the United States Army, which he charges with being "soft" on communism. These televised hearings gave the American public their first view of McCarthy in action, and his recklessness, indignant bluster, and bullying tactics quickly resulted in his fall from prominence.

In February 1950, Senator McCarthy charged that there were over 200 "known communists" in the Department of State. Thus began his dizzying rise to fame as the most famous and feared communist hunter in the United States. McCarthy adeptly manipulated the media, told ever more outrageous stories concerning the communist conspiracy in the United States, and smeared any opponents as "communist sympathizers" to keep his own name in the headlines for years. By 1954, however, his power was beginning to wane. While he had been useful to the Republican Party during the years of the Democratic administration of President Harry S. Truman, his continued attacks on "communists in government" after Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower took over the White House in 1953 were becoming political liabilities.

In an effort to reinvigorate his declining popularity, McCarthy made a dramatic accusation that was a crucial mistake: in early 1954, he charged that the United States Army was "soft" on communism. McCarthy was indignant because David Schine, one of his former investigators, had been drafted and the Army, much to McCarthy's surprise, refused the special treatment he demanded for his former aide. In April 1954, McCarthy, chairman of the Government Operations Committee in the Senate, opened televised hearings into his charges against the Army.

The hearings were a fiasco for McCarthy. He constantly interrupted with irrelevant questions and asides; yelled "point of order" whenever testimony was not to his liking; and verbally attacked witnesses, attorneys for the Army, and his fellow senators. The climax came when McCarthy slandered an associate of the Army's chief counsel, Joseph Welch. Welch fixed McCarthy with a steady glare and declared evenly, "Until this moment, Senator, I think I never really gauged your cruelty or your recklessness... Have you no sense of decency, sir, at long last?" A stunned McCarthy listened as the packed audience exploded into cheers and applause. McCarthy's days as a political power were effectively over. A few weeks later, the Army hearings dribbled to a close with little fanfare and no charges were upheld against the Army by the committee. In December 1954, the Senate voted to censure McCarthy for his conduct. Three years later, having become a hopeless alcoholic, he died. ■ classified as “medium density residential.”

Discussed at this planning meeting was the adoption a Municipal Code Amendment, which would exempt developments consisting only of duplex housing units from the obligatory building separation standards for multi-family developments in Chino Hills Municipal Code (CHMC).

There would be 38 duplexes consisting of 76 dwelling units in this former municipally-owned area. These proposed 76 units would range from 2,442 sq. ft. to 2,569 sq. ft, each unit possessing five (5) bedrooms, a two-car garage, and a minimum of 525 square feet of private open space (such as backyard space).

Senior Planner Ryan Gackstetter presented the information on this project to the Planning Commission on April 4. The project applications include a General Plan Amendment, Zone Change, Municipal Code Amendment, Site Plan Review, and Vesting Tentative Tract Map. Overall, it would help the city reach housing and population goals.

One public speaker and resident of the adjacent neighborhood on Deer Haven Drive, Antonio Tau, voiced concerns about parking. He stated that the on-street parking within the project may be insufficient, and so residents and guests would park on surrounding streets, such as his own. He suggested prohibitions to overnight parking or required permits as a solution to this potential problem. This concern played a part in the continuation of the hearing until April 18.

The senior planner Gackstetter stated of the proposed alterations and concerns, “The applicant is making concerted efforts and strides toward adaptation to code and paying heed to surrounding citizens’ concerns.”

A few of the issues the Commission discussed with both staff and applicant included the following: street improvements and project requirements to ensure driver visibility entering and exiting Founders Drive; guest parking on the driveways of the duplex units with fewer on-street parking; landscaping, irrigation, and maintenance of project perimeter slopes; project design, the connection of the duplex units, and the quality of the architecture, among others.

After the application is brought to the commission, it will be brought before the City Council Citizens of Chino Hills will soon see just what their “old” city hall becomes, and who that land houses. ■ built from these humble beginnings. Currently, the organization assists often-stigmatized individuals, including parolees and homeless persons, in their recovery through provision of work, shelter, food, and clothing, so as to reintegrate them as productive members of society.

Heart 2 serve offers a 2-year program that begins with establishing a life-plan of achievable goals designed to measure a client’s progress, rebuild his confidence, and discover newfound hope.

According to its mission statement, Heart 2 Serve Inc. is “the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things unseen.” From the ashes of all the ruins of lives destroyed by addiction, there is birthed a new life amidst despair in the act of serving others. Thus, the name was chosen: Heart 2 Serve.

Among the services required and/or available for a client of the transitional living and reintegration program is participation in the following: substance abuse recovery programs (12 Step meetings), spiritual counseling, safe shelter, employment and skill training (through the construction and moving services training), health and care, food and clothing, legal assistance, education and transportation, and, finally, gainful employment.

The professional contracting and moving services that Heart 2 Serve provides through its nonprofit not only helps fun their ministry, but it also offers an opportunity for individuals in the program to learn new skills and earn an income.

To that end, Heart 2 Serve is a licensed, bonded, and insured general contractor, able to meet every commercial and residential construction and moving needs.

What attracts individuals and businesses to hire Heart 2 Serve over other companies is not just the low pricing, but, as a non-profit, there is also a substantial tax savings provided in using the service, as it is considered a “charitable contribution” on tax forms.

Good cause. Good savings. Rebuilding society from the ground up – literally. Not much else one could desire from a non-profit, really. For more information, visit www.h2si.org. ■

Home Prices Continue To Rise!

By NEF CORTEZ

Home prices across the US have continued their steady rise after its dramatic drop which began in 2007-2008 fiscal year. The expansion in home prices has continued since the low point of $152,000 reached at the end of the first quarter of 2012. The major impact of the Great Recession of 2008-2009 translated into a decrease in prices from 2007 until 2012.

Although it has suffered some fits and starts through the 8 year dip and then ascension, the median price in that period of time has increased by a strong 29 %.

Diamond Bar and Chino Hills home prices have seen a similar dip and rise, although it has been more pronounced. The median sales price of a home in Diamond Bar was approximately $597,000 in 2007, and it dropped down to about $441,000 in 2012, a drop in median sales price of 24%. The increase after the Great Recession has been more dramatic in Diamond Bar, going from $441,000 to the now current $646,000, an increase of 46%, an average of 9% per year!

The median price of a home in Chino Hills went from the peak in 2007 of $592,000 down to its low point in 2012 at approximately $424,000, a larger drop of 29 %. Home values came back stronger in Chino Hills (as a percentage of median sales price) than it did in Diamond Bar, going from the low point of about $424,000 up to its current level of $626,000. This represents an increase of 48% over the last 5 years, an average of a little over 9% per year.

In retrospect, the "Right Time to buy" in the last decade was April 2012. That goes along with the Old Adage, "Buy Low; Sell High"

Prior to sentencing one of the victim's family members addressed the judge:

"We do not understand how another human being, who bleeds just as we do, could be so quick to pull the trigger and take the life, the very last breath, last drop of blood from the most kind-hearted and loving human being to walk this earth... While we were standing over his casket waiting for him to wake up, give us a hug and tell us it was just a dream, his body never moved. After a while, we were all forced to realize that we were living in a nightmare." ■

Healthy Living

5 Heart Healthy Habits

By STATEPOINT

Heart disease and stroke cause one in three deaths among women each year, killing approximately one woman every 80 seconds. While there are many risk factors involved that are beyond one’s control, a healthy lifestyle can make a big difference.

Here are five healthy habits that can reduce your risk for illness.

- Move about: Exercise doesn’t have to be daunting! Aim for 10-minute sessions, three times daily. Movement sets your metabolism in motion, so make sure it’s a consistent part of your life.
- Get sleep: Sleeping fewer than seven hours a night can make you gain weight and have more trouble taking it off, according to Columbia University research. Another study found that people who get enough sleep have a five percent higher metabolism than people who don’t. That means more calories burned while you’re sleeping! Doesn’t get much easier than that.
- Eat small and well: “Studies have found that losing five to 10 percent of your body weight can lower the risk of a heart attack,” says Dawn Zier, CEO of Nutrisystem and the 2017 Go Red for Women Campaign Chair in Philadelphia, a movement to help end heart disease and stroke in women.

Research suggests that eating smaller, balanced meals throughout the day promotes greater weight loss and maintenance, and can also be good for your heart. Schedule meals every two to three hours, six times a day. Programs designed to help you eat healthy portions can mean seeing quick results. For example, Nutrisystem Lean13 is a new program designed to help you lose up to 13 pounds and seven inches in the first month. For more information visit nutrisystem.com.

- Rise, shine, drink water. You’ll burn more calories all day: A German study found that drinking 48 ounces (about six cups) of cold water increased calorie burn at rest by up to 50 calories per day. This alone could melt a pound in a little more than two months. And drinking it before meals could give you an added bonus, as a Virginia Tech study found that dieters who drank two, eight-ounce glasses of water before meals for 12 weeks lost 36 percent more weight than those who didn’t down the water.

- Put your phone away: Checking your email in the morning will just stress you out. Many productivity experts recommend waiting at least an hour once you get to work before checking your inbox, so you can tackle your most important priorities calmly without getting distracted.

Be proactive. Take steps to improve your health and reduce your risk for serious illness. ■

Recipes:

Crusted Dijon Cod

with Dilled Fingerling Potatoes and Roasted Broccoli

By HELLO FRESH

Cooking Time: 35 mins.
Servings: 4
Nutrition: 460 Calories
Ingredients:

- Oil- 2 Tbsp
- Butter- 2 Tbsp
- Fingerling Potatoes- 24 oz.
- Broccoli Florets- 16 oz.
- Dill – ¼ oz.
- Parsley – ¼ oz.
- Garlic – 4 Cloves
- Lemon - 2
- Panko Breadcrumbs – ½ cup
- Cod – 24 oz.
- Dijon Mustard – 4 tsp.

1. Preheat and Prep. Wash and dry all produce. Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Cut potatoes into 1-inch pieces. Pick fronds from dill and discard stems. Finely chop fronds until you have 1 TBSP. Finely chop parsley. Mince or grate garlic. Zest lemon until you have ½ tsp zest, then cut into wedges.

2. Boil Potatoes. Place potatoes in a medium pot with a pinch of salt and enough water to cover by 2 inches. Bring to a boil and cook until potatoes are easily pierced by a knife, about 15 minutes. Drain, then return to pot.

3. Roast broccoli. Meanwhile, toss

broccoli florets on a baking sheet with a drizzle of olive oil and a pinch of salt and pepper. Roast in oven until beginning to turn bright green, about 5 minutes (we’ll be adding more items to the sheet later).

4. Make crust and prep cod. In a small bowl, combine parsley, lemon zest, panko, half the garlic, a pinch of salt and pepper, and a drizzle of olive oil. Pat cod dry with a paper towel, then brush fillets with a drizzle of olive oil. Season all over with salt and pepper.

5. Roast Fish. After broccoli has roasted 5 minutes, remove sheet from oven. Give broccoli a toss and push toward one side. Place cod on other side of sheet. Brush a thin layer of mustard onto tops of fillets, then press crust mixture into mustard. Return sheet to oven and cook until broccoli is tender and cod is cooked through and flakes easily, 8-10 minutes.

6. Finish and plate. Add 1 TBSP butter, remaining garlic, and dill to pot with potatoes. ■

Playing Catch

BY MARK HOPPER

On a recent trip, my wife and I were able to visit some of our out-of-town grandchildren. They have grown up so much since we saw them last summer. It was delightful to spend time with them.

One grandson specifically requested that I bring a baseball and a glove so that we could play catch together. He has a glove and a ball, but you need two to play catch. I was glad to oblige.

One day we grabbed our gloves and a well worn baseball and walked to a nearby field. It wasn't a traditional baseball field. It didn't have a back stop, pitcher's mound or bases. But, it was covered with green grass and bright colored yellow wild flowers. It looked more like a mountain meadow that a baseball diamond.

We started to play catch. While we tossed the baseball back and forth, and we talked. We talked about the weather and if it was likely to rain today. We talked about how beautiful it was with the fresh green grass and beautiful flowers covering the field.

We talked about some of the unusual rules that there are in baseball. For example, when you are batting and the catcher drops the ball on a third strike, you can still run to first base. There is a rule that says if you bunt the third strike into foul territory you are automatically out.

There is a rule that says if the pitcher hits the batter with the ball, the batter automatically gets to go to first base. And, there is another rule that says if a batter hits the ball over the outfield fence it is a home run, but if the ball bounces over the fence it is only a double.

We also talked about life. We talked about what it was like to be nine years old. We talked about his school and what he was learning. We also talked about his friends and what they are like.

I'm sure we talked about a lot more things. We played catch for quite a while. It was relaxing and casual. He dropped a few throws but he caught most of them. My grandson is a pretty good ball player. Who knows, maybe he will be in the majors one day.

But, regardless of what the future holds, I will remember playing catch with my grandson for a long time.

Let me encourage you to make a plan and take some time to spend with someone special in your life. It is not the activity that matters but spending time together.

Is there someone who has been asking you to do something with them recently? Have you put it off because you are too busy to do it right now? Don't let the opportunity pass you by. Make a plan and set aside some time to do something soon. You will be glad you did and they will too!

Spreading Good In The World

BY NANCY STOOPS

I am very blessed in that, as a therapist, I help people heal and then allow them to become the best version of themselves. This is truly why I was put in this world. As awesome as my life's work is, please don't underestimate the power that you all have in this world. Every morning when Midnight - my dog - and I are doing our miles of walking we always run into people in our neighborhood. It always amazes me how when they see Midnight they smile and when I say hello and wish them a beautiful day they light up. It's in the moment of connection with another being that we all have the chance to spread the good in our world.

You may not be a therapist, but each and every day you all have the power to spread the good in the world. Saying hello and wishing somebody a beautiful day can make somebody's entire day. It's such a simple act of kindness and goodness and you don't need lots of letters after your name to do this. I chat with the crossing guards as they help Midnight and I make our way safely across the street. I chat with my neighbors and everybody I can. I wish them some good and they smile. It's about giving the gift of joy and spreading the good and ultimately changing somebody's day. If you and I offer this gift, then hopefully they will pay it forward.

Yes I am an optimist, and I do have faith that we can change this world for the better. It starts with you and me and even Midnight. Together we can spread the good and help everybody understand that they have the power to make our world a better place.

Straight Talk With Danice

I dont want a gun- a letter from Evelyn

BY DANICE AKIYOSHI, N.D.

Q: My husband has become very paranoid about all of the shootings that have been on the news. He owns several guns and he is always asking me to go with him to the shooting range to practice. I go with him so I can keep up my skills and I hope this will help him feel better, but now he wants me to choose a gun for myself. I do not want a gun for myself.

I do not really feel comfortable with guns. I carry a taser device instead and I don't want to go any further with my personal protection devices. He says he needs me to be prepared to protect our family in case he's not home, but guns are not for me. I don't want my own personal gun. I need your advice.

A: This is a personal choice. You have every right to make this decision for yourself. The fact that you accompany him to the shooting range and are willing to understand basic gun operations in order to protect your family is quite cooperative of you. If you don't choose to be a gun owner yourself, state that firmly to your husband. Let him know that you've agreed with and taken the proper steps to back him up in an emergency but you are just not willing to take it to the next level of purchasing a gun for yourself. If he pressures you, then point out that he is acting in a way that is similar to the people he fears.

my survival for retirement.

I believe that when we explore the secrets we hold special to our heart, when we pursue the special interests we feel we're good at and love to do, we find ourselves at a special place. A special place known to few, an arena that moves mountains, makes us soar like the birds in the sky. A place that gives us a feeling as though we're as fearless as an ancient warrior, or a common-day hero.

A place where we're at our best, where we learn our calling, where we find ourselves. A place in our hearts and minds that is and always will be there once we gather the courage to seek it out within ourselves. A place we are so comfortable, so content, so adamant about being. Where we shine and feel the presence of how intelligent we are. Because when we feel it, we are only embracing what's already there. We are embracing something deep inside us all, a place called "brilliance." ■ ships, guardianships, and living trusts.

At the Law Offices of Rossana Mitchell, the philosophy focuses on client support and structure during all stages. It is vital that clients become familiar with and aware of the court process, and, most especially, the particulars of any and all court processes regarding their case, during their time seeking legal action.

Customers continue to seek out services with Attorney Mitchell precisely because of her known reputation to fight for her clients. She always provides aggressive representation in protection of clients' rights, no matter how daunting the odds may seem. "I enjoy using my skills and knowledge to protect the rights of all persons," declared Ms. Mitchell. She does so both in and out of the courtroom.

Ms. Mitchell provides novel ways of integrating technology and communication in her firm so that no client slips through the cracks. To this end, she has stated, "I want there always to be an open line of communication between myself and my clients. I have a cell phone specifically for my clients to reach me via text at any time.” This allows constant attorney-client access for emergency-type situations, just alleviating the client of panic in any period of panic.

Family law is rarely pleasant, but it is very doable. With Attorney Rossana Mitchell's guidance, your family law or legal trust need not be what can feel like an unbearable burden. Let someone else help you along the way, and you will have the assurance of both guidance and legal protection. ■
