NON PROFIT INVESTIGATION: 88 SPIRITS FDTN

BY STAFF REPORTS

Eastvale— In our investigative reporting series of local non-profits accountability, we have requested information and tax records for several area non-profits. Our response from 88 Spirits Foundation, a local non profit who accepts donations from local residents, businesses, and government agencies, was “we are a private foundation and we do not have to disclose where our money goes out to.”

According to IRS.gov, this is incorrect. According to the IRS, you have the right to inspect and obtain a copy of a tax-exempt organization's: Annual information returns (e.g., Form 990); Exempt status application materials; and Notice of status under Internal Revenue Code section 527(i).

“All we want to know is where the money goes. We are asking accountability,” said Michael Armijo, Editor of City of Eastvale News.com. “Nothing more, just where are you spending the money people and companies are donating. If they are working with the city, and if the city is spending money (labor, promotion, direct donations) on the foundation, then they are spending the taxpayers money. If the resident's are donating, where is resident's money going? That's it.”

“As you have stated, 88 Spirits Foundation is a 501(c)(3) private foundation, and as such is subject to IRS regulations on all tax-exempt organizations and nonprofit organizations,” wrote Anthony Chan, a freelance reporter, in a letter to Hari Dihman, listed as the Principal in the 88 Foundation.

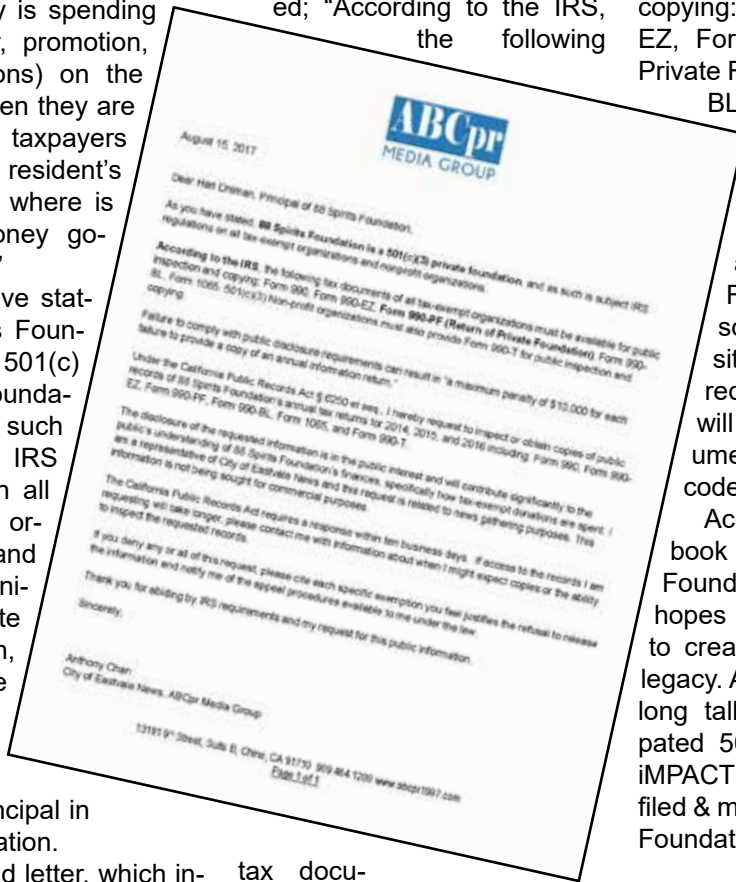

The demand letter, which included the formality of content required under the Freedom

Of Information Act, also stated; “According to the IRS, the following able for public inspection and copying: Form 990, Form 990-EZ, Form 990-PF (Return of Private Foundation), Form 990-BL, Form 1065. 501(c)(3). Non-profit organizations must also provide Form 990-T for public inspection and copying.” The 88 Foundation office personnel stated the opposite, that they were not required to comply and will not produce any documents regardless of IRS code.

According to their Facebook page; “The 88 IMPACT Foundation was built with the hopes of its founding family to create an impactful family legacy. As of April 22, 2014 the long talked about and anticipated 501(c)(3) Non-Profit 88 IMPACT Foundation has been filed & made active. 88 IMPACT Foundation will serve to further

Driveway Blockers Beware

BY STAFF REPORTS

In California, it is illegal to park a car in front of a driveway. According to California Vehicle Code § 22500, “A person shall not stop, park, or leave standing any vehicle... In front of a public or private driveway...” Anyone who decides to park in front of a driveway is subject to towing and citations.

This law may surprise a lot of people who believed that once they purchased a home they could do whatever they want with it. Contrary to popular belief even in America we are not entitled to do whatever we want. You can park in front of your own driveway but just remember that the police can also write you a citation for doing it.

Bank Robbery Investigation Leads to Animal Cruelty Case

BY MIREYA DE LA PAZ

Corona- A man was arrested by the Corona police Wednesday July 26, 2017 for bank robbery in Corona, California.

72 year old Robert Bustamante Flores threatened a teller of the Western Bank on 1050 W. Sixth Street in Corona July 20, 2017. Flores was suspected of robbery when he went to the police department and police were suspicious and got a search warrant. Corona police searched his home to look for evidence specifically among the robbery.

They found about 36 dogs living in his home in the 100 block N. Vincentia Avenue. Flores began to tell the police that he lived in the garage while the dogs lived inside the home. Corona animal control decided to raid the home and found a total of 35 dogs and 7 small puppies.

Animal control officer Bill Sellers explained how he had never seen anything like it and how it was the worst call

Are You Worthy of Imitating?

By PASTOR ROB NORRIS

"His delight is in the law of the LORD, and in His law he meditates day and night". Psalm 1:2

As parents, we need to think about the priorities we are teaching our children by our words and our actions. Ask yourself, If I could pass on my relationship with God to my kids, would they be satisfied with what they receive? If my children could never experience anything more than what I have today, would they be given enough to navigate themselves successfully through life? Would they experience God? Would they know enough of Christ to long for more—a deeper and deeper fellowship with Jesus Christ?

One thing I have learned is that your children will listen to what you say, and they will do what you tell them, but they will become who you are. If your daily experience with Christ is less than you want your children to possess, they probably won't ever have it either.

Your model should be the man in Psalm 1—the one whose "delight" is in spending time with God and His Word (verse 2). The one who "meditates" on the things of God through the ins and outs of the day. The one who keeps him- or herself "firmly planted" by those "streams of water" (verse 3).

Only then will you be the model your children need to emulate.

Live It

Share honestly those things that are distracting you right now from your relationship with Christ. How are you showing your children the reality of truly walking with Jesus Christ?

Pray

Perhaps you should consider using this prayer time separate from one another and consider surrendering your will to His will. Ask Him to make you worthy of being imitated.

Meeting @ 10:00 at River Heights Intermediate School 7227 Scholar Way, Eastvale CA. Trusting and believing with you. ■

Is It Really From You, God?

By PASTOR SEAN ORTIZ

Have you ever asked yourself, "How do I know this is from you God?" Well here are 3 things we can do to help assure that we are hearing from God.

1. It aligns with God's word.

God will never do anything in our life unless it aligns with His word. Jeremiah 29:11 says it perfectly: "For I know the plans that I [a]have for you," declares the LORD, "plans for welfare and not for calamity to give you a future and a hope."

2. There will be confirmation.

So, God can use others to bring confirmation, as long as it aligns with His word. Deuteronomy 19:15 tells us: "...on the evidence of two or three witnesses a matter shall be confirmed."

3. It requires a dependence on God.

If it Aligns with God's word, we have confirmation from 2 or 3 witnesses and it requires a dependence on God then it truly can be confirmation you are hearing from God. In Zechariah 4:6, God tells us: "Not by might nor by power, but by My Spirit," says the LORD of hosts."

So, If you are wondering how to hear from God here are three things to help solidify if you are doing God's Plan vs a Good Plan for your life. Remember to LET GO AND LET GOD.

Shopping Local Can Benefit You and Your Community

By STATEPOINT

If you have home improvement plans, it's important to consider where you will be doing your shopping. For many people, the first stores to come to mind are big box retailers because of the widespread assumption that chains can offer better selection and better prices.

Keep in mind, though, that when it comes to items needed for your home projects -- whether it be new flooring, paint or a kitchen renovation -- more often than not, experts say that your local independent retailer can offer as good or better selection, be competitive with pricing, and provide a superior customer service experience.

What's more, shopping at local businesses can benefit your household and the community. At a locally owned store, you will be more likely to find interesting items and products that set your home apart. And more of your dollars will stay put when you give them to business owners who pay taxes locally, hire locally and may be more inclined to support community charities and organizations.

You may also find independent retailers that can offer some of the same benefits as a large chain. For example, when small business owners belong to a cooperative, they come together to scale buying power, access goods and services at a lower cost, and create opportunities not available to them as individual businesses. For you, this can mean more and better choices of products and affordability.

In the case of Flooring America for example, this means being able to offer a wide selection of products, including hard surfaces like hardwood, laminate and tile, and soft surface flooring, paint, cabinets for kitchen renovations and even closet organization solutions. Their retailers can be found in local communities throughout the country, with a varying product selection depending on location.

So, if you are looking to make home improvements, check out your local retailers that not only offer great product selection, but also contribute to your community in a positive way. ■

Corona PD shoot, kill suspect in Norco following chase

at 2:09 a.m. after officers responded to a 911 call regarding an assault with a deadly weapon at a strip club in the 1600 block of East 6th Street, according to the Riverside County Sheriff's Department.

Authorities said the two men were considered suspects in the assault of a victim in the strip club's parking lot.

Officers arrived to find a suspect vehicle with two men fleeing the scene. A chase ensued through the city of Corona.

As the car entered Norco, the driver lost control at West Parkridge Avenue and 1st Street and crashed, the sheriff's department said. The two suspects then jumped out of the car. One ran, while the second produced a handgun.

The suspect that pulled out the gun was shot and killed by Corona police officers. The second suspect was caught and arrested nearby.

No officers were hurt in the incident. The names of the two suspects were not released.

The sheriff's department is leading the investigation. The officers involved in the shooting were placed on paid administrative leave, per department policy.

Officials told CBS 2's Jeff Nguyen a gun was recovered at the scene.

Nguyen also spoke to neighbors who heard the shooting.

Luis Cali and his family were in bed when their sleep was interrupted by a series of gunshots.

"This is kind of crazy," said Cali, "you don't expect this to happen."

The car crashed directly across the street from Jonathan Hames' home.

"It was really scary at first," he says, "because I just saw a bunch of lights. That's what I work up to. ■

Our Life

Lost Love

BY MICHAEL ARMIJO

I stood there in the courtyard, I waited. Her little eyes, her bright smile, her warm hugs, I was waiting for them all. It would be just a few minutes before that bell would ring, it would be just a few minutes before my little love of life would run out smiling, wrapping her arms around me proclaiming, “Daddy, I love you.”

The bell rang and I stood there. I watched, I waited. I sought her out, but she didn’t show. Hundreds of kids ran by and I made eye contact with each and every one of them. There wasn’t a chance in life that she would’ve gotten by me. My mind knew what she looked like, what she resembled, any similarities in her characteristics. I was like a machine, scanning the crowd, like a robot with a mission. I was waiting for someone who made my life complete, who I had given my heart to, who I trusted my feelings, my spirit, my life.

After the four hundredth kid passed me by, I felt a sensation of panic. I felt a sense of fear. I was afraid that I had lost one of the only things in life that I trusted, an entity in life that I knew loved me, unconditionally, and who would be there to the end.

When I felt that panic, when I felt the fear of losing someone I really loved, I wondered why? Why did I feel so fearful, why was I so afraid? Why did I feel such a sense of panic? And then I remembered what had happened ...

I remember my mother, my father, my family. I remember how much they loved me, how they took care of me. I remembered giving my eight-year-old heart to those who I thought I could trust. And then I remembered how one day my life changed. I still don’t recall how, and I still can’t understand why. But for some strange reason, when I was growing up, my life was filled with love and joy, and then one day it was all taken away. All that I knew as a child, all that I trusted, was ripped from my heart, and then ripped from my soul. And no one explained to me why.

After the inconsistency of that environment, I found new love from girlfriends in high school. And then they too, like my family, left me, and took parts of my heart with them. I remember, at 16 years of age, standing in the aisle of Sav-on stocking shelves, while tears poured from my eyes. I was hurt, I was devastated, I was alone. Again, someone whom I gave my heart to had taken a piece of my inner self. And again, they left without a word.

It took so long for me to love again, to fully trust people, but somehow I did. I began to give my heart, or what was left of it, to others whom I felt I could trust. I slowly began to rebuild my life, and finally I had. Or so I thought...

The way I felt that day when I couldn’t find my daughter, that sleeping giant of fear woke up and looked around. I remembered the pain, and the sorrow of how I felt, I remembered how much love hurt. I guess that when I waited for her, those feelings of abandonment returned, and I was so afraid of losing yet another love in my life. I didn’t have much heart left to lose, I couldn’t stand to go through what I had experienced so many times, and so many years ago. But I faced those demons of fear and abandonment and grew from my pain. I simply refused to let my past interfere with my future. I’ve worked too hard to let irresponsible acts of yesterday interfere with what I’ve built today. That day, I found my daughter, and I faced my fears.

And as each day passes, I thank God for the opportunity to feel feelings and emotions that some people will never feel. I thank God for being able to enjoy my life with a smile and a hug. More importantly, I thank God for allowing me to understand that someday I may lose the ones I love, but not to fear, because today is the day I enjoy their presence, their love, and their joy. And when they’re gone, I still have wonderful memories that I will make today, so that I can remember tomorrow. And some day, I know God will give the world a beautiful place in their soul, like he has given me. A place that sits in my heart free from past pain, free from fear and abandonment, and free from lost love. ■

August 9, 1969: Manson cult kills five people

BY HISTORY.COM

On this day in 1969, members of Charles Manson’s cult kill five people in movie director Roman Polanski’s Beverly Hills, California, home, including Polanski’s pregnant wife, actress Sharon Tate. Less than two days later, the group killed again, murdering supermarket executive Leno LaBianca and his wife Rosemary in their home. The savage crimes shocked the nation and, strangely, turned Charles Manson into a criminal icon.

Manson was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1934 to an unwed 16-year-old mother. He spent much of his childhood in juvenile reformatories and his early adulthood in prison. After his release in 1967, Manson moved to California and used his unlikely magnetism to attract a group of hippies and set up a commune, where drugs and orgies were common, on the outskirts of Los Angeles.

Manson preached his own blend of eccentric religious teachings to his acolytes, who called themselves his “Family.” He told them a race war between blacks and whites was imminent and would result in great power for the Family. Manson said they should instigate the war by killing rich white people and trying to make it look like the work of blacks.

Roman Polanski (Rosemary’s Baby, Chinatown, The Pianist), was not the cult leader’s intended target. Manson, an aspiring musician, chose the Polanski house because he had once unsuccessfully tried to get a recording deal from a producer who used to live there. Polanski was out of town at the time of the murders, but his wife and her friends, including coffee heiress Abigail Folger, were shot or stabbed to death. Manson stayed out of the Polanski house on the night of the crime and didn’t take part in the LaBianca killings either. However, he would later be charged with murder on the grounds he had influenced his followers and masterminded the crimes.

After initially eluding police suspicion, Manson was arrested only after one of his followers, already in jail on a different charge, started bragging about what had happened. Manson’s subsequent trial became a national spectacle, in which he exhibited bizarre and violent behavior. In 1971, he was convicted and given the death penalty; however, that sentence became life behind bars when the California Supreme Court overturned the death penalty in 1972.

Manson has been the subject of numerous movies and books, including the best-seller Helter Skelter (the title is a reference to a Beatles’ song of the same name, through which Manson believed the group was sending secret messages to start a race war). Manson remains in a California prison.■

Back-to-School Tips to Help Reduce Stress

By STATEPOINT

School can be a stressful place, from finding a seat at lunch to making new friends, but don't let supplies be one of those stressors. Make life just a bit easier with the right supplies, so students have more time to focus on the important things. To help reduce stress, consider the following tips and tricks.

Lighten the Load

Students are always on the go -- shuttling to and from school, attending rehearsals, practices and other extracurricular activities, and moving about from class to class. Managing mobility is crucial toward alleviating physical stress.

Use multifunctional tools that can help them carry less, such as the Five Star Flex Hybrid NoteBinder. It acts like a notebook and works like a binder with flexible, durable rings that open and close, allowing students to add, remove or resort their papers. Carrying less means less to worry about.

Further lighten the load by carrying only what is needed. Pack backpacks the night before to avoid bringing textbooks or binders that won't be used. Another tip is to look for a backpack that features ergonomic straps to help distribute weight evenly and reduce physical stress. A backpack that has this feature is the Five Star Expandable Backpack; not only that, it also has expanding compartments offering extra room when needed. Other things to look for are pockets to help keep small supplies organized and easy to find, and padded sections for holding and protecting technology.

Stay Organized

Being organized can reduce so many headaches. Yet somehow, it's all too easy to let backpacks, lockers and even bedroom floors get messy. Use effective organizational tools to ensure assignments aren't misplaced in the shuffle. For example, the Five Star Storage & Organization Divider features mesh storage pockets that are great for smaller school supplies; plus, it can snap into a notebook or be stored in a binder for easy organization of important papers.

Write it Down

Write down assignments as soon as they are given. Being proactive will make sure there are no surprises. A planner is great for accessing information anytime, however you may want to display this crucial information on a wall calendar or planner at home as well.

Remain Balanced

Beyond selecting smart gear, students can help ensure a successful school year by making room in their schedules for activities that help reduce stress, whether that's listening to music, going for a run or spending time with friends.

Find a few systems that help keep mental and physical stress low, and work hard to keep them in place throughout the year. ■

5 MAKE SAUCE. Add shallot, thyme, and a drizzle of olive oil to same pan over medium heat. Cook, tossing, until shallot is soft, 2-3 minutes. Stir in balsamic vinegar and apricot jam. Let simmer until syrupy, about 1 minute. Stir in 1/2 cup water and stock concentrates. Simmer until thickened, about 3 minutes. Remove pan from heat, add 2 TBSP butter, and stir or gently swirl pan until melted.

6 PLATE AND SERVE. Discard thyme from pan. Season sauce with salt and pepper. Thinly slice chicken. Divide chicken, green beans, and potatoes between plates. Drizzle sauce over chicken and serve. ■

Win the Battle Against Back-to-School Germs

By STATEPOINT

Did you know that, on average, elementary school children get eight to 12 colds or cases of the flu each school year, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention? This school year, follow some healthy habits to avoid the back-to-school plague.

First, wash hands and other items that you touch, like cell phones or desks, frequently. Cell phones carry 10 times more bacteria than most toilet seats; and school desks have been found to hold 400 times more bacteria than toilets.

Next, pick up school supplies that help fight germs, such as Easy Liner brand shelf liner with Clorox antimicrobial protection. The shelf liner features an antimicrobial additive to prevent the growth of odor-causing mold and mildew on the liner. Plus, it can be tossed in the wash for easy cleaning. Place it in areas of your home or classroom where school items are stored like floors, counters, desks and shelves. For more information, visit duckbrand.com.

Help stave off colds and flu all school year with great germ-fighting habits. ■

How Smart Home Technology Can Help You Eliminate Stress this School Year

BY STATEPOINT

Many parents have worries around the back-to-school season, especially if kids will be alone for a portion of the afternoon or in the morning before catching the bus.

What if you could keep a better eye on things when you're not physically there? Here are some ways to use smart home technology to simplify daily routines and minimize stress knowing the kids are safe.

Start with a Hub

A hub is like the brain of your home tech and connects to your router, allowing devices like locks, thermostats and lighting to communicate with one another. The hub can even send notifications to your mobile phone, so you can monitor and control your home remotely. With hubs such as SmartThings, Wink or Nexia, setting up your devices and customizations is simple. However, you may prefer a hub disguised as security panels, such as ADT Pulse or Vivint, or those that work with popular voice speakers, such as Amazon Echo and Google Home.

Customize

Scenes are an easy way to sync smart devices to perform a series of actions that make life more convenient. For example, you can wake your kids with a "good morning" scene that turns lights on and plays music via an Echo or Google Home.

Worried about energy bills? Keep kids from cranking the air after school with a smart thermostat, which lets you control the temperature throughout the day.

After homework and chores are complete, a voice control assistant will keep kids entertained with music, and a movie scene can lower lights and turn on speakers. Finish the day with a "good night scene," that shuts off lights, lowers the temperature, locks the doors and arms the security system.

Think Safety

Your smart home can keep a watchful eye on kids. Smart door locks like Schlage or Kwikset eliminate the need for kids to keep track of housekeys, and let you know if they forget to lock the door when they leave. When they get home, you'll receive a notification letting you know they've arrived safely.

Security-focused solutions like the Piper NV camera and hub, or Abode's DIY security solution alert you when someone enters and exits, and even provide video clips to your phone. Smart sensors, such as those from Aeotec, can notify you whenever a window, door or even a cabinet drawer is opened.

During emergencies, kids can press Fibaro's Button device to activate an emergency scene that signals an alarm and sends a notification to your phone indicating they need help.

Future-Proof Your Tech

Smart home tech doesn't have to be expensive; you can start small with a hub and a few devices and add more as your needs change. Just be sure all your devices can talk to one another now and in the future. With Z-Wave technology for example, devices from different manufacturers can communicate, no matter where you bought them, so consider looking for the Z-Wave logo when shopping for smart home technology. For smart home ideas and customer support, visit z-wave.com.

Alleviate back-to-school stress with new tools that help you keep kids safe and streamline your day. ■

3 Home Projects to Transform Your Yard into a Refuge for Birds

BY STATEPOINT

Millions of wild birds are killed each year flying into windows, including private homes. Birds face other dangers, too, in your yard, whether they are migrating or flying locally.

Everyone, but especially those who enjoy having birds visit their yards and gardens, should take steps to make their homes a safer place for birds.

"Birds are part of a healthy ecosystem. Turning your home into a refuge for birds is good for the environment, saves lives and can add beauty to your garden," says Spencer Schock, founder of WindowAlert, a company that offers decals and UV Liquid that are highly visible to birds but barely noticed by people.

Schock is offering three home projects you can do to help protect birds.

- Do some planting: Creating a bird-friendly yard does not have to be at odds with your desire to have a beautiful garden. Plant trees, shrubs and flowers that provide birds with the nourishment and shelter they need. The good news is that there are many beautiful varieties of bird-friendly vegetation. To be a good environmental steward, opt for species native to your region.

- Make Windows Visible: Preventing birds from striking your windows is easier than you may think because birds can see certain light frequencies that humans can't. An easy way

“The California Public Records Act requires a response within ten business days. If access to the records I am requesting will take longer, please contact me with information about when I might expect copies or the ability to inspect the requested records,” Chan wrote.

For exemption application materials, a community member is entitled to inspect or receive a copy of the organization’s exemption application (Form 1023, 1024, or other document required to be filed), any papers filed in support of the application and any determination letter issued by the IRS with respect to the application.

Nonprofits are required to file IRS Form 990 must allocate their annual expenses into three categories: 1.program expenses—expenses directly related to carrying out your nonprofit’s mission. 2. administrative expenses—expenses for your nonprofit’s overall operations and management—for example, costs of board of directors’ meetings, general legal services, accounting, insurance, office management, auditing, human resources, and other centralized services, and 3. fundraising expenses—including costs for publicizing and conducting fundraising campaigns, maintaining donor mailing lists, conducting special fundraising events, and any other activities that involve soliciting contributions. The IRS does not require that nonprofits spend any particular portion of their income on each category. It just wants nonprofits to report how they spend their money, according to nolo.com.

Failure to comply with public disclosure requirements can result in “a maximum penalty of $10,000 for each failure to provide a copy of an annual information return.”, according to IRS.gov.

Next month we will follow up with the information requested. ■

both the homeowner/renter as well and the local authorities. If a fire or other disaster were to happen near your home and you had to evacuate but a family member parked in front of your driveway you would lose all of the cars in that driveway. If there is a crime reported it give the criminal another place to hide from the police when they come to investigate. It is another obstacle the Fire department would have to negotiate during the chaos of putting out the fire.

The most effective solution would be to talk to your neighbors about the safety concerns for the community and the local authorities. If you have a neighborhood watch program in place they could help you bring awareness to everybody that a citation can be issued for the offense.

Although it might cause problems for the offending driver, residents are justified in reporting blocked driveways because it is simply against California Vehicle Code. ■

he had ever received. They had to put one off the dogs to sleep due to his severe wounds while most of the dogs were found with multiple diseases. They explained the home as “destroyed” with demolished furniture and animal waste left on the floors. The dogs were all neglected and were not being properly fed and hydrated. Thankfully, Corona Animal Shelter was able to take all 36 dogs and are currently being taken care of and supervised. Flores was arrested for the charge of Robbery and his bail is $30,000 while the animal cruelty investigation is still ongoing. ■ to make your windows visible to birds in a way that won't disrupt your view outside your window is by applying UV decals and UV liquid to your windows. Consider those from WindowAlert, which are proven to effectively alter the flight path of birds and prevent window strikes. While the ultra-violet coating will look like etched glass to you, it will be quite visible to birds. For best application techniques, visit windowalert.com.

• Monitor the Cat: If you have cats that like to spend time outdoors, be sure to monitor them to prevent bird hunting. If possible, consider keeping birds safe by creating an outdoor area for your cat to roam that's enclosed. If you're handy, you may try building this area yourself, but keep in mind, read-made structures are widely available, too.

With a few simple steps, you can convert your garden and yard into a veritable safe haven for birds. ■

Christian radio show seeks to inspire youth with male role models

said Anthony. If we continue down this path, “we're headed to Hell in a handbasket.” Anthony believes that by showing the world good, ordinary men who do the right thing and “take care of the kids [and] treat [their] wives well,” he can inspire a new generation of Christian men who uphold the virtues of Jesus and the Bible.

By “modeling ourselves after Jesus,” we can become a “Mighty Man of Valor” just as the Bible says, says Anthony. We need to “fight outside pressures to do what makes you feel good” and instead do what's right by “following Jesus, doing the right thing, and making it known.”

Although his radio show “Men of Impakt” features men, he makes it clear that he does not intend to suggest that there are no “Women of Impakt” but rather it is men who should bear the responsibility of fixing a morally corrupt world. Because “women did not create sex trafficking, porn, [and] domestic violence,” it is “Men [who] screwed it up, [men who should] fix it.”

From a Bible study group at church, Anthony partnered with Shawn Kelly at Hope Radio 24/7 start “Men of Impakt.” Next week, the radio talk show will feature Eric Ray, a father of three boys who has been distinguished as a positive influence to his friends at church and to the community. The feature will be part of a series titled, “Raising God's Children in a God Challenged World” and will bring listeners a chance to learn about marriage, health, and finance from a Christian perspective.
