Pomona- On Tuesday, September 18th at 11:44am, the Pomona Police Department Patrol Division received a call about a possible fire in a residential area. Officers were dispatched to the scene and upon arrival they discovered a downed power line. The power line let to a residence at 1055 Groff St.

At that time the Officers began a search by conducting a routine safety check of the address. What they found was a house that appeared to be a vacant. A very strong and clear odor of marijuana was emitting from an open window of the house. Connecting the Dots

Diamond Bar Students Make Their Mark

BY KELLI GILE

Diamond Bar- Quail Summit Elementary took a spot-on approach to promoting creativity, art, and collaboration during Dot Day held September 14.

"It's a day where we celebrate making a mark in this word, believing in yourself, and others," said elementary learning specialist Leann Legind.

The annual event was inspired by the book The Dot by Peter H. Reynolds about a caring teacher who dares a doubting student to trust in her own abilities by being brave enough to "make her mark."

What begins with a small dot on a piece of paper inspires people around the world to discover the power and potential of creativity in all they do.

"Dot Day is about not fearing creativity, but rather embracing it," said Principal Frances Weissenberger.

In the past few years, Dot Day has become an international celebration with over 13 million students in 178 countries participating each September.

"Students were so excited to create art on this special day!" Legind said.

The children and staff members arrived at school decked out in polka dot clothing, hats, socks and headbands, with dotted t-shirts and jeans, and even a few spotted faces.

Teachers read The Dot to their students and classrooms created canvas dot art to be featured in a unique gallery.

The Quail Summit youngsters joined an outdoor collaborative art project throughout the day by painting designs on pink, purple, blue, green, green, yellow, orange, and red circles.

Each grade level also had the opportunity to learn about famous artists such as Wassily Kandinsky who created the Squares with Concentric Rings watercolor in 1913.

Third graders in Criss Sykes class painted their own Kandinsky-inspired masterpieces.

"Dot Day inspired me because anyone can draw anything if their heart wants to," Macie Marquez shared.

"Even simple things can be art and art doesn't have to be perfect. It teaches us to persevere and never quit," added classmate Ian Xia.

"We connected the dots at Quail Summit to inspire creative teaching and learning!" Legind said. ■

5 Tips to Bring Your Home's Wifi 'Dead Zones' to Life

By STATEPOINT

Whether it's to stream a movie from the bedroom or lock the front door using smart home technology, you've likely come to expect Wi-Fi to reach every corner of your house. The reality is that there are certain locations in many homes where Internet-connected devices and smartphones are unable to receive a steady Wi-Fi signal (or any signal at all) from the router. These sad places are called "dead zones."

"Dead zones typically include bathrooms, second and third story bedrooms, attics, basements, garages and back patios -- and they can drive everyone in the house absolutely crazy," says Jeff Parker, the "Wi-Fi Guru," and editor of the Milo Wi-Fi Blog, a source for practical advice, new products, and leading-edge technology dedicated to enhancing the Wi-Fi experience.

So, given today's basement-to-attic demand for Wi-Fi access, what is the most economical and effective strategy for winning the battle against dead zones in your home? Parker offers five no-cost/low-cost suggestions:

1. Keep your router away from metal. Objects such as mirrors, televisions, appliances or anything large made primarily of metal (i.e. decorative furniture, filing cabinets, even fish tanks!) have the potential to impair your network's signal strength. If possible, move such items and your router apart.

2. Switch to a less crowded frequency. In living spaces like apartment buildings, too many broadcasting networks can interfere with each other and impact Wi-Fi quality. Because routers broadcast across two wireless frequency bands, 2.4 and 5 GHz, when one is too crowded it acts like a highway packed with cars. The good news is you can usually switch frequencies within your mobile device settings to use the less crowded channel.

3. Reboot regularly. Routers asked to complete many requests, such as handing out multiple IP addresses to different devices and handling large downloads, can end up slowing down because of the heavy workload. You can think of rebooting your router as basically refreshing it and clearing any memory or stalled tasks.

4. Get the latest hardware. If you're still using that dinosaur router from the early 2000s, it's probably time for an upgrade. Outfitting your home with a smarter and more advanced router could be the solution to your Wi-Fi woes, especially if your existing router is a very old model with limited capabilities. Internet service providers often provide router upgrades by request for no charge.

5. Consider a distributed mesh Wi-Fi system. For Wi-Fi that reaches farther, consider a mesh Wi-Fi system, which consists of a main router connected to a modem and a series of satellite Wi-Fi distribution modules placed throughout the house. Those from Milo provide a strong uninterrupted signal to every Wi-Fi device in the home, from attic to basement. To learn more, visit milowifi.com or call 1-877-426-6456.

Don't just live with the dead zones in your home. By taking a few simple steps, you can enjoy a more satisfying Wi-Fi experience. ■

September 22, 1862: Lincoln issues the Emancipation Proclamation

By HISTORY.COM

On this day in 1862, President Abraham Lincoln issues a preliminary Emancipation Proclamation, which sets a date for the freedom of more than 3 million black slaves in the United States and recasts the Civil War as a fight against slavery.

When the Civil War broke out in 1861, shortly after Lincoln's inauguration as America's 16th president, he maintained that the war was about restoring the Union and not about slavery. He avoided issuing an anti-slavery proclamation immediately, despite the urgings of abolitionists and radical Republicans, as well as his personal belief that slavery was morally repugnant. Instead, Lincoln chose to move cautiously until he could gain wide support from the public for such a measure.

In July 1862, Lincoln informed his cabinet that he would issue an emancipation proclamation but that it would exempt the so-called border states, which had slaveholders but remained loyal to the Union. His cabinet persuaded him not to make the announcement until after a Union victory. Lincoln's opportunity came following the Union win at the Battle of Antietam in September 1862. On September 22, the president announced that slaves in areas still in rebellion within 100 days would be free.

On January 1, 1863, Lincoln issued the final Emancipation Proclamation, which declared "that all persons held as slaves" within the rebel states "are, and henceforward shall be free." The proclamation also called for the recruitment and establishment of black military units among the Union forces. An estimated 180,000 African Americans went on to serve in the army, while another 18,000 served in the navy.

After the Emancipation Proclamation, backing the Confederacy was seen as favoring slavery. It became impossible for anti-slavery nations such as Great Britain and France, who had been friendly to the Confederacy, to get involved on behalf of the South. The proclamation also unified and strengthened Lincoln's party, the Republicans, helping them stay in power for the next two decades.

The proclamation was a presidential order and not a law passed by Congress, so Lincoln then pushed for an antislavery amendment to the U.S. Constitution to ensure its permanence. With the passage of the 13th Amendment in 1865, slavery was eliminated throughout America (although blacks would face another century of struggle before they truly began to gain equal rights).

Lincoln's handwritten draft of the final Emancipation Proclamation was destroyed in the Chicago Fire of 1871. Today, the original official version of the document is housed in the National Archives in Washington, D.C. ■

Stuck in Your Home?

BY NEF CORTEZ

One of the factors driving California housing prices higher is that there are many people stuck in their homes because they cannot afford to sell the home where they live and move to another comparable one, or even one of lesser value. A large number of Californians purchased their homes more than 30 years ago, and their homes have appreciated in value substantially since then.

Many of these homeowners (and Diamond Bar has its' share) have been able to stay in their homes because of Prop 13. Since California voters approved passage of Prop 13 on June 6, 1978, a homeowner in the state is able to have their real estate property taxes on their home capped where the tax rate cannot increase more than 2 percent annually. (The effective tax rate cap is a result of the property re-assessment being capped at 2 % annually).

Without Prop 13, many "longtime" homeowners would not be able to stay in their homes because of annual property value re-assessments, and therefore, increases in their property taxes. A homeowner who purchased their home for $100,000 in 1980, for example, would have had property taxes (based on Prop 13) of $1,000 annually, or about $83 per month, with a maximum increase of about $1.70 per month annually. Without the benefit of Prop 13 limits, that homeowner would have a home now worth approximately $750,000, and consequently, much higher property taxes. Assuming the 1% cap (without the annual 2% cap on property re-assessment), this homeowner would be paying at least $7,500 in taxes annually, or approximately $625 per month.

The obvious benefit of lower property taxes and maintenance of affordable payments for homeowners who purchase many years ago is now constricting or inhibiting their ability to move to more appropriate housing. The restriction is the cost of increased property taxes based on the sale of one's residence, and the purchase of another. There are a few counties in the state of California that allow for the transfer of the lower tax base for a homeowner 55 years or older, under Proposition 90, from one county in the state to another. Out of 58 counties in the State of California, only 8? Have approved it for their counties.

Proposition 5 in this years November election proposes to equalize Prop 90 across the entire state. A homeowner otherwise qualified for Prop 90 benefits would not be limited to only one of the 8 counties that have approved it, but be free to move to any of the 58 counties in the State of California and be able to receive the benefits of Prop 90.

Recipe:

Sweet 'N' Smoky Chicken Cutlets

with Cherry Ancho Barbecue Sauce, Green Beans and Pineapple Rice

By HELLO FRESH

Cooking Time: 30 mins
Servings: 4
Nutrition: 640 Calories
Ingredients:

- Chicken Cutlets- 20 oz
- Ancho Chili Powder- 2 tsp
- Scallions- 4
- Pineapple- 8 oz
- Thai Chili- 1
- Basmati Rice- 1 cup
- Sweet and Smoky Barbecue Seasoning- 2 tbsp
- Cherry Jam- 4 tbsp
- White Wine Vinegar- 5 tsp
- Green Beans- 12 oz
- Chicken Stock Concentrates- 2

1 PREP Wash and dry all produce. Pat chicken dry with a paper towel. Season all over with salt, pepper, and half the chili powder (1 packet). Trim, then thinly slice scallions, separating greens and whites. Drain pineapple over a small bowl, reserving juice. Halve Thai chili lengthwise, then thinly slice. TIP: Remove the ribs and seeds for less heat and wash your hands after handling.

2 COOK RICE Melt 2 tbsp butter in a small pot over medium-high heat. Add pineapple chunks and scallion whites. Cook, tossing occasionally, until just softened, about 1 minute. Stir in rice, 1¾ cups water, and salt and pepper. Let come to a boil, then reduce heat to low, cover, and bring to a simmer. Cook until tender, 12-15 minutes, then let stand off heat, covered, for about 5 minutes.

3 COOK CHICKEN. Heat a large drizzle of oil in a large pan over medium-high

heat (we used nonstick). Add chicken and cook until browned on bottom, 5-6 minutes. Flip and cook until browned on other side, 3-4 minutes more. Meanwhile, add barbecue seasoning, jam, remaining chili powder, 1 tsp sugar, and vinegar to pineapple juice in bowl and stir to combine.

4 COOK GREEN BEANS Place green beans in a medium microwave-safe bowl with 2 TBSP water. Cover bowl with plastic wrap and poke a few holes in wrap. Microwave on high until tender but still bright green and a little crisp, 2-3 minutes. Drain and toss with 2 TBSP butter. Season with salt and pepper.

5 MAKE SAUCE. Once chicken is browned on both sides, add jam mixture and stock concentrates to same pan. Flip chicken to coat all over. Let jam and stock mixture simmer until thick and glaze-like, 1-2 minutes. (TIP: It's ready when it coats the back of a spoon.) Remove pan from heat and add 1 TBSP butter, stirring to melt. Season with salt and pepper.

6 PLATE AND SERVE. Fluff rice with a fork, the divide between plates along with chicken and green beans. Drizzle any remaining glaze in pan over chicken. Garnish with scallion greens. Sprinkle Thai chili over chicken (to taste—leave it off the kids' plates). ■

Forget Calorie Counting: New Guidelines for Losing Weight

By STATEPOINT

For years, the general wisdom was that the only scientifically proven way to shed pounds and inches was to consume fewer calories than one burned each day. Unfortunately, that formula doesn't work for everybody. Why? Experts say that this is because successful weight loss is associated with a wider range of factors.

"Gaining control of your weight is more complex than the 'calories in/ calories out' approach that so many dieters subscribe to," says Margie Adelman, president of Simplipur, a maker of dietary supplements. "Now research shows that powerful factors regulate weight, and that understanding those factors can help you reach your goals."

According to Adelman, these are clinically proven actions that promote fat loss, which every dieter should know about:

- Rethink your goals. In dieting, your number one goal shouldn't be to lose pounds but rather to increase your lean body mass. Healthy weight loss is all about burning energy, and the leaner your body mass, the more energy you can burn. It's by "building lean" that you will lose fat.
 - De-stress. Stress triggers a "fight or flight" response, during which the body produces adrenaline that mobilizes stored fuel so you can run away or pick up a stick and fight. That fuel is stolen from muscles and organs, tearing down lean body mass, as well as leaving energy in the bloodstream that the body converts to fat if it's not used.
- To bust stress, first recognize its source and takes steps to manage it. Before going to bed, try relaxation techniques such as breathing exercises.

Take a walk or do jumping jacks; find a way to discharge the nervous energy pumped into your bloodstream, so it won't be stored as fat while you sleep.

- Sleep well. Jealously guard sleep time and don't let anything interfere with it. The deep sleep states are when anabolic processes take over to build lean body mass, so high-quality, undisturbed sleep is essential. Your bedroom should be cool, dark and quiet. If you need white noise, make sure that it's constant and not irritating.
- Get exercise and make it fun. Exercise builds lean body mass, so get plenty of it. But make sure it's something fun so you'll enjoy it and keep up the habit.

- Eat right. Low carb diets like the Paleo Diet, which feature a wide variety of protein sources, fruits, veggies and healthy fats, have the best profile for losing body fat while building lean body tissue and are much healthier than low-calorie diets. Remember that lean body tissue is made from protein, so if you want to "build the lean" eat plenty of protein. You may also want to consider incorporating a dietary supplement into your routine, such as Lean 2.0 Weight Management, which supports fat loss and helps you increase lean body mass by working directly with your metabolism.

For more information, visit www.getlean2now.com or call (800) 809-8351 for more information.

To get serious about weight loss and reduce body fat, move beyond the old way of thinking. For best results, incorporate dieting principles based on new scientific research. ■

Three Generations

BY MARK HOPPER

My wife and I grew up in the Phoenix area. When we were young, our parents took us to Southern California for summer vacation. We didn't know each other at the time, but our families went to a lot of the same places like San Diego, Mission Beach, Sea World and Disneyland. After we got married and settled in Tucson, Arizona, we brought our own children to Southern California, too. It was a big deal for us to take our four kids to San Diego, Mission Bay and the San Diego Zoo. On a few special occasions, we brought them to Disneyland.

One of our favorite family memories was packing their suit cases while our kids slept and then picking them up at school and driving out of town as they tried to guess where we were going. We will never forget their shouts of excitement when they discovered we were going to Disneyland. Now, there is a third generation of Hopper kids and grandkids that have enjoyed going to Disneyland together. Recently we went with six of our grandchildren and their parents to the Magic Kingdom. It is fun to see the excitement and wonder in their eyes and in their voices. There is no place like Disneyland! The younger members of our family prefer rides like Dumbo, Peter Pan and the Tea Cups. Their parents like to try more adventurous rides like Indians

Jones, Runaway Mine Train and Star Tours. The grandparents enjoy more mellow rides like the Monorail, Mark Twain steam boat; it's a Small World and Pirates of the Caribbean. Everyone enjoyed the Pixar Parade and the Fireworks display. My wife and our daughters managed to do a little shopping and we found time for some good food and snacks, too. It was a memorable day for our family. Our budget doesn't allow us to go to Disneyland very often and your budget may not either. But, I do think it is priceless to make some memories with our family from time to time. They were glad we did and we were too! This article was written by Pastor Mark Hopper, Efree Church of Diamond Bar, 3255 South Diamond Bar Blvd, 909-594-7604, Sunday Services: 9:00 & 10:45 AM, Efreedb.org ■

Be Who You Want to Become

BY NANCY STOOPS

Change is something that doesn't happen overnight. Just for a moment I want you to think about who you long to be. For me I always want to be happy and peaceful. The way that I work on this is by trying to smile, laugh and appreciate every day and then I am happy. I also try to do the things that I enjoy and always have some type of adventure planned. This is a good recipe for happiness for me. As far as being peaceful, I meditate daily and try not to let things irritate me too badly. I also must always remind myself that I am only in control of myself and of my responses. I don't have the power to control others. This seems to be an equally good recipe for inner peace. Now I must keep in mind I am human and that there will be very difficult days that maybe my recipes struggle but must pat myself on my back for tying my best. Now it's your turn to think about who you want to be. Get out a piece of paper and write down one characteristic that you would like to obtain. My example to help you will be living a healthy life style. This doesn't mean a crash diet and working out so hard for a couple of days that you can't move. It means that you will eat a well- balanced meal, exercise consistently, drink lots of water, get plenty of rest, quit smoking, learn to drink alcohol in moderation, and manage your stress daily. This plan may differ for each individual because it will need to be balanced around the demands of each individual's lives. My point is we eventually become what we do and how we behave!!!! *This article was written by Nancy Stoops M.A., M.F.T. Autism Mom

Bullying

BY MELODY KRAEMER

The other day I woke up with a heavy heart. My son got bullied while he was at school. No matter how much we try to protect our children we just can't always be there with them. Now my son is not one to sit back and take someone beating him up or kicking him while he is down, he will try and defend himself. On this particular day, he spits on a kid to protect himself from being bully. He got in trouble, not in a lot of trouble, but he did get in trouble. He used "bodily fluid" to defend himself. He was angry over this; more than angry he was livid. He did not understand how in self-defense he was the one in trouble. Explaining to my autism child sometimes is like talking to a brick wall, his mind is black and white with no grey area. The "bully" to my understanding got sent to the office, sent home with a note, and a phone call to the parents. He was also not allowed to play on the same playground as the class during recess. When I picked up my son that day he broke down in front of me and just cried hard, as a mom my heart broke for him. I calmly listened to him; his hurt and anger were off the charts. I talked to him and tried my best to calm him down. All he could think about was how he was going to get revenge. Autism thinking can be so perplexing at times and can be narrow-minded with no room for understanding. It took me most of the day to explain that we don't get revenge on people. Though his anger grew and he still didn't understand the concept why he got in trouble for defending himself. Honestly, I still have a small issue understating it myself. He was told by the school any time that anyone attempts to bully him or anyone he needs to go to an adult. I told him if there is no way he could get out of the situation and get to an adult he has every right to defend himself even if it meant spitting. He may get in trouble but I said if he felt that was the only way out of his situation he has to do what he has to do. I have a 0% tolerance for bullying I will not tolerate my son or any other child to be bullied. I can't talk to every child, I can't speak to every child who bullies, but I can and will talk to my child about bullying. *Melody Kraemer is the Editor and Publisher Macaroni Kid Jurupa Valley- Eastvale and Macaroni Kid Riverside. with drivers in residential areas. The bicycle and pedestrian improvements will increase connectivity for people accessing neighborhood destinations such as transit stops, local parks and schools.

"I am proud of the City of Chino's commitment to make Chino a cycling and pedestrian friendly city by improving and increasing the number of safe bicycle lanes in the community. Thanks to this partnership with SCAG, the community will have the opportunity to experience what some of these improvements will look like," said Chino Mayor Eunice Ulloa.

Connecting Chino will bring together family, friends and neighbors to enjoy free activities including a kids' bike skills workshop, bicycle repair, live entertainment and dance performances, an obstacle course bounce house, a community barbeque, a health and wellness fair, giveaways and more. Attendees are encouraged to attend this free community event on foot or by bike, scooter or skateboard.

Chino Mayor Eunice Ulloa

and SCAG Regional Council Member Ray Marquez will speak at a brief kickoff event on Saturday at 9:30 a.m. on the main stage adjacent to the Tenth Street Park playground. California State Assembly Member Freddie Rodriguez and San Bernardino County Supervisor Curt Hagman will also be in attendance.

SCAG's Go Human campaign is working with cities and counties across Southern California to develop open streets events and safety demonstration projects, such as Connecting Chino, which promote safety while encouraging people to walk and bike more.

"To date, Go Human has supported 22 demonstration events in cities across the Southern California region and is committed to hosting an additional five events this year," said SCAG President Alan D. Wapner. "Making it safer to bike and walk to local destinations not only boosts local economies, but it also expands mobility options beyond driving."

Connecting Chino is the product of a partnership between the City of Chino, Clean Transportation Funding – Mobile Source Air Pollution Reduction Review Committee and SCAG's Go Human campaign.

Walnut High: Angela Cao, Jeremy Chang, Ashley Chen, Flora Jin, Karen Liu, Amy Lo, Dylan Song, Jordin Wang, Justin Wang, Christopher Yang, Michelle Yee, Tiffany Yeh, Brandon Young, Alice Zhang, and Angela Zhu.

"We are extremely proud of these 33 seniors for receiving this nationwide honor!" said Superintendent Dr. Robert Taylor.

"This level of success is a testament to the caliber of educational experience they are receiving at our high schools each and every day."

More than 1.6 million students entered the Merit Program as juniors by taking the Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

High scorers were designated semifinalists, representing less than 1% of the state's graduating class.

In total, just over 16,000 talented seniors qualified nationwide.

These students will continue to compete for some 7,500 National Merit Scholarships that will be offered in the spring.

The WVUSD senior scholars will advance to the finalist level upon completion of additional requirements.

They must maintain an outstanding academic record throughout their senior year, be endorsed and recommended by their principal, submit SAT scores that confirm their earlier qualifying test, and complete an essay and scholarship application detailing their leadership and community activities.

The 2019 National Merit Scholarships will be awarded beginning in April and concluding in July. ■ every day, only 100% whole milk mozzarella hand grated, organic hormone free chicken, hand cut veggies and love are used to create a pizza fit for a king to take home to your family's castle.

Papa Murphy's is the fifth largest pizza franchise in the world, Tammy Tubbs the owner and operator of the location in Eastvale has been a fan for over 20 years. She likes to joke that they are "the biggest little pizza chain that you have never heard of." Tubbs has fond memories of Friday nights as a child spent eating Papa Murphy's pizza and playing cards or dominos with her sisters.

"We have contributed over $26,000 to elementary and high schools, churches, charities and countless fundraising drives over the years," said Tubbs. Support your local small business to ensure we can continue to support the community for years to com.

Tubbs was an active duty officer in the United States Air Force from 1999 to 2007 as a human resource and acquisition officer, stationed across the southwest, including Luke Air Force Base and The Space and Missile Systems Center. In 2007, when she separated from the Air Force she built a very successful defense contracting company in El Segundo.

While visiting Northern California with her family, she realized how much she missed her favorite Papa Murphy's Chicken Bacon Artichoke pizza. That was when she realized the Inland Empire had nothing that came close to the freshness and quality she grew to love. It was that very night she told her husband she was quitting her job and opening Papa Murphy's in Eastvale. Nine months later she was open and making pizzas with 22 employees all local hires from Eastvale and Chino. The rest, as they say, is history. We
